GUILD FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Governor Rallies To-day and Hope for His Recovery Is Strengthened---Condition, However, Is Still Critical.

The condition of Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., is unchanged. He passed a comfortable morning.

Governor Guild is still a very sick man, but his physicians and his friends are greatly cheered by the vitality which he displays. His splendid physical condition is expected to pull him through this illness. He is making a great fight for life.

The following official bulletin was issued by Dr. Frederick B. Winslow this afternoon:

"1:15 p. m.—The Governor has passed a comfortable morning, and his condition is unchanged."

At noon there was a note on the door of the Marlboro street residence informing all callers that Governor Guild's condition was the same as at the time of the issuance of the early morning bulletin, and that he was resting comfortably.

A basket hung on the knob received all the cards and letters of sympathy left by friends. None rang the bell.

Mrs. Guild Reassures Friends.

Mrs. Guild and her sister, the Countess Orlandine Guidi, drove out during the morning, reassuring the relatives and friends of the family.

The last official bulletin of the morning was issued by the physicians in attendance on the sick Governor through Frank L. Dean, private secretary, at the State House. It follows:

"10 a. m.—The Governor has had a good night. His condition now is practically the same as it was yesterday. At present he is resting comfortably."

This followed a bulletin issued by Dr. Frederick B. Winslow at 7:45, which said:

"The Governor awakened and took nourishment."

The first bulletin of the early morning came after the anxious hours of the night, when it was thought that the Governor was dying. It was sent out by Dr. Winslow at 6 o'clock, and read: "The Governor passed a fair night, but he is still a very sick man and is in a critical condition. There has been no pneumonia turn in his sickness. Drs. Joslin and Shattuck, who have been in consultation with me on the case, are still in deliberation and watching his condition."

Lodge Calls at Guild Home.

One of the early morning visitors at the home of Governor Guild, at No. 124 Marlboro street, Back Bay, was United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. When Senator Lodge left the house he said he was greatly pleased to find the Governor's condition improved to-day.

Attorney-General Dana Malone left the State House at 10:30 o'clock to visit the Governor. He had been at the Governor's house the greater part of the night. "The Governor's condition is very serious," he told an AMERICAN reporter. "The change for the worse came during the night. I told the physicians that the public should know the Governor's true condition, and the statement to the press was sent out. This morning he is resting a little more comfortably."

Telephone calls from all parts of the country were received at the State House to-day as to the Governor's condition. Senator Murray Crane was another early caller.

The alarming news that the Governor was seriously ill was not given out until last night. He became so weak yesterday afternoon that his physician, Dr. Frederick B. Winslow, decided that a consultation was necessary, and Drs. F. C. Shattuck and Elliott P. Joslin were called in.

They agreed that the Governor's condition is extremely critical, that he is suffering from an aggravated attack of muscular rheumatism and grip, and that despite the efforts of the physicians to prevent it the ailment had reached the region of the heart.

Word of his condition has been sent to the Governor's relatives and close friends, none of whom had previously suspected his critical condition.

HAVERHILL ASKS RULE BY COMMISSION

Citizens and Officials Urge Mayor and Four Aldermen to Run City.

Haverhill's Civic League was present in force at the State House to-day. Mayor Boswell C. Woods, Esmer S. Abbott, City Solicitor of Haverhill; Mayor Sanderson of Springfield and City Solicitor Wooden, and Boyd B. Jones and William Herman Moore, president of the Haverhill Civic League, were among those present to enlighten the committee on cities as to House Bill 631 to provide for the government of certain cities and the adoption thereof by special election. Mr. Jones informed the committee that it was not general legislation, but a special bill that he wanted to submit to the people of Haverhill at the next election.

President Butler opened for the petitioners, the Haverhill Civic League. The petition before the committee was signed by seven or eight hundred voters.

Mr. Jones said that there is a widespread feeling in Haverhill that there was mismanagement in its city affairs.

"We have got in the city of Haverhill the old style of government. The double board of directors under which we are now is a foolish idea.

"The charter we desire provides for the election of a board of five. I am not afraid of calling it government by commission if it is a good thing. That board will comprise a Mayor and four Aldermen, the Mayor at $2,500, and the Aldermen at $1,800, to serve for two years. We place in the hands of these five men—the Mayor to have his vote as he should, but not his power of veto as he should be—the powers now reposed in the City Council and the two boards which at present make up the City Council. We provide for five departments. At the head of each one of these departments we put one of the five men to occupy the position of superintendents."

MAYOR HIBBARD, ANGRY, SCORES CITY COUNCIL

IN LETTER TO LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE HE DECLARES HIS SUGGESTIONS ARE IGNORED.

Angered at the failure of the City Council to co-operate with him in effecting desired reforms in the city government, Mayor Hibbard to-day wrote the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs asking that the committee take up for immediate consideration his bill to allow the reorganization of city departments.

The Mayor calls the attention of the committee to the fact that he petitioned the City Council in January to allow a reconsolidation of the departments of the old street department, but that up to date there has been no action. The Mayor also accuses the City Council of ignoring various suggestions for salary reductions, save in one case.

Arraigns City Council.

The letter is a sharp arraignment of the City Council, and the action of the Appropriations Committee last night in increasing his budget by nearly $660,000 is felt to have been one of the causes that imbolled him to write the letter.

That he feels that he must look solely to the Legislature for relief is the statement of Mayor Hibbard, and he reiterates his belief in the efficacy of his own bill turning the power to make appropriations and loans over to himself and the Finance Commission, and also giving them authority, acting jointly, to reorganize city departments. Tuesday the Senate and House chairmen of the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs wrote to the Mayor and the Finance Commission requesting them to refer immediately to the committee any recommendations made to the City Council and ignored by that body.

Angered by Overtime Charges.

The Mayor also "got after" the department heads to-day in regard to charges for overtime work in the departments, telling them that in the future no bills for overtime work are to be contracted without his consent. His communication to them was as follows:

To the Heads of Departments:

The bills submitted for overtime work are far in excess of what the appropriations requested for the different departments will allow.

I cannot believe that the force of help employed by any department is inadequate to cope with the regular routine business, and in the future overtime bills are not to be contracted by any department without the consent of this office having first been obtained.

The head of a department shall, in anticipation that overtime work will be required, transmit in writing the reasons therefor. Respectfully,

D. A. HIBBARD, Mayor.

GETS 6 YEARS' TERM FOR SHOOTING GIRL

SULLIVAN, WHO TRIED TO KILL WAKEFIELD BELLE, SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Frederick J. Sullivan, twenty-seven, of Wakefield, was sentenced to serve from six to eight years in the State prison at Charlestown by Judge Bell in the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge to-day for shooting, with intent to murder, Miss Mary A. McFadden, eighteen, also of Wakefield, and a pretty soloist in the choir of St. Joseph's Church, in Wakefield, on the night of December 27 last.

Standing statue-like in the dock, his eyes riveted upon the floor, the young man never flinched when sentence was passed. In the rear of the courtroom his aged and grey-haired father and mother and his four pretty sisters sat.

"My God! My God, it's awful!" one of the sisters cried, and, half dazed, she was assisted down the stairs and to the street by men spectators.

Declare Youth Sane.

Drs. George F. Jelly and Edwin R. Utley, who examined Sullivan as to his sanity, reported to the court this morning that the young man was perfectly sane and that the bullet he carries in his head has not affected his mental condition. While the physicians were examining him dull Sullivan said to them:

"I feel sorry for it. I felt bad and did not want any other fellow to have the girl. After I shot her I didn't want to live any longer, so I shot myself."

The court room was crowded when Sullivan was led in from the cells. District Attorney John J. Higgins moved that sentence be passed immediately. Attorney O'Connor, for the defence, swore Attorney George M. Cahan, Selectman Thomas G. O'Connell, ex-Chief of Police John M. Cate and Tax Collector Charles G. Walton as to the young man's good character. Mr. O'Connor asked that he be sentenced to a House of Correction instead of to State prison.

Suffering From Bashfulness.

"He is suffering," said the attorney, "from a mental aberration caused by extreme bashfulness, which rendered him very sensitive to the repulses of women."

Judge Bell, calling to the prisoner to face him, said: "I do not feel that these revolver assaults, intruding to kill women when they refuse the attention of men, are the proper means of settling such affairs. The protection of women in the community is of great import. A man who thinks that it is heroic to shoot a woman if she refuses him, and then shoot himself, is both cowardly and contemptible.

"A man must take the consequences when he takes the law into his own hands against a defenceless woman. I shall impose a substantial penalty."

Shot Brother, Then Girl.

The crime for which Sullivan was sentenced was sensational. He was madly in love with the pretty Miss McFadden, who repeatedly warned him that his attentions were undesirable. A week before he shot the girl Sullivan shot her brother, Andrew J. McFadden, when the latter ordered him to keep away from the McFadden home and stop annoying his sister.

Sullivan was arrested after the shooting, but was out on bail, awaiting trial, when he shot Miss McFadden. The young woman was returning home from a choir rehearsal when Sullivan jumped out from behind a tree, shot her three times and then turned the gun upon himself. Miss McFadden was not in court to-day when sentence was passed.

3 FINED FOR COCAINE SALES

Fred A. Ewell, proprietor of a drug store at No. 1,433 Washington street; George F. Rampoll, a clerk at the Ewell store; James J. Cramer, a clerk at No. 39 Harrison avenue, and James E. Lombardi, a clerk at No. 257 Hanover street, were all summoned into the Municipal Court to-day before Judges Wentworth and Sullivan by the State Board of Health on charges of selling medicines containing cocaine without a physician's prescription.

Ewell pleaded guilty in three counts and the cases were placed on file. Rampoll pleaded guilty and was fined $50. Cramer pleaded guilty in four counts. He was fined $25 each on two counts and two were placed on file. Lombardi pleaded guilty in one count and was fined $25.

FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR C. F. KING IN ENGLAND

MAN NAMED "F. C. KING" IS BOOKED TO SAIL ON CELTIC.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LIVERPOOL, March 19.—A search for Cardenio F. King, the Boston financier, who is wanted in that city on a charge of grand larceny, was resultless to-day. The passenger list of the Celtic, which will sail to-morrow for New York, contains the name "F. C. King."

Evidence of irregularity in stock transactions will be presented to the Suffolk Grand Jury on the first Monday in April by more than twenty creditors of Cardenio F. King, the Boston financial agent who fled from this city on February 20, taking with him, it is believed, more than $50,000 in cash.

Assistant District Attorney M. J. Dwyer is investigating to-day the allegations made against King by some of those who invested with him. Inspector McGarr of Chief Watts's staff, who is ready to serve the warrant charging King with the larceny of $5,000 worth of stocks, should he be able to locate him, believes that the erstwhile financier is not far from Boston. The police are hot on his trail, it is claimed at headquarters, but they are said to be holding off results, pending the action of the Grand Jury.

The King residence at No. 60 Power street, valued at $50,000, is mortgaged for $15,000 with the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company. Anson Lyman of the Pemberton Building had a chance to buy the property for $30,000 just before it was taken by King last year.

Mortgaged Property for $5,000.

The two King autos and household and office furniture were mortgaged by King on February 19 for $5,000. The deed was executed to George A. Staples, a money lender at No. 43 Tremont street. Mr. Staples is wroth. He says he was induced to loan the $5,000 by Hopkins, King's business associate, who was a friend of his, and that he had no intimation of the crash to come. Staples thought he would be given good interest on a two months' note and get his money back. The note is not yet due.

Attorney Charles A. McDonough of the Kimball building, with whom a number of King's creditors have placed their claims, says the sale of the effects should bring enough more than $5,000 to leave something for other creditors.

Mr. Staples has shown every disposition to be fair," he said, "but to-day I felt that the sale proposed would not be for the interest of my clients I should ask the court to order a sale under its jurisdiction."

Paid $4,000 for Auto in January.

One of two autos mortgaged by King cost him $4,000. It was not paid for until last January. It is the 1908 model sixty horsepower Austin touring car.

Mrs. Ernest F. Forbes, who, with her husband, lost $170 in the King crash, told her story to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN at her home, No. 56 Franklin street, Allston, to-day. She said:

"My husband placed confidence in Mr. King because of his former dealings with him. Finding that former investments were secure, he felt safe in purchasing stock on January 15.

"That day he went down to Mr. King's office and bought five shares of Anaconda at 33. He received a receipt for his money, and was told that the certificates would be sent to him in a few days, but he did not receive them at the specified time.

Never Got the Certificate.

"One day when he was off work, some time in February, he dropped in to Mr. King's office to find out when a dividend would be paid on Anaconda. He saw former Postal Inspector Snow, who told him that he did not know. My husband then asked for the certificate. He was told that it would be sent to him shortly. It was never sent him."

THIS MAN PAID $500 AND ALL HE GOT WAS A RECEIPT

AMESBURY, March 19.—Tolling at his bench in the carriage factory of Lauber & Hollander in this town, Everlete Simon, who had $500 invested through C. F. King in American Woolen Company stocks, was found to-day by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"Yes," he said, "I did have money invested with King. About the first of January I sent him a check for six shares of American Woolen stock. The check was for $500 of my hard-earned money. I received a receipt, which is now at my home and which I am going to keep. My interests are being looked after by Lawyer McCarthy of Boston, and I expect to go to Boston as a witness when King is apprehended and brought back.

Simon can ill afford to lose this money, which was a fortune to him.

TEXTILE WAGE CUT PROTEST BY WORKERS

Lowell Unions Send Letter to Agents of Mills in Opposition Plan.

'NOT THE PROPER REMEDY'

LOWELL, March 19.—Protesting against the proposed 10 per cent. cut in wages, the Lowell Textile Council has sent the following letter to the cotton mill agents of the city:

"To Members of Lowell Manufacturers' Association, William S. Southworth, Secretary:

"Gentlemen—At a meeting of Lowell Textile Council, held Tuesday evening, March 17, the proposed reduction of 10 per cent. in wages in cotton mills of the city came up for action, and after full discussion of the question, I was instructed to notify you that the council protests against the reduction of 10 per cent. in wages, which goes into effect March 30, as not the proper remedy for the present depression in the cotton industry.

Would Curtail Production.

"That a curtailment of production is at all times preferable to a reduction in wages, which reduces the purchasing power of the wage-earner.

"I am also instructed to call the attention of members of your association that up to the time of the failure of the money market caused by the panic which followed the closing of the doors of the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York, the cotton industry was going through a period of unexampled prosperity, which is amply proved by the vast earnings made by the cotton mills in New England during the last two years or more.

Co-operated With Owners.

"That the cotton textile workers of this city co-operated to their fullest extent with the manufacturers by giving them the best possible service, in some departments running their machines as much as seventy hours in a week.

"And, furthermore, the wages have already been reduced in some departments of some of the mills, and in one mill in particular the reduction averages a good deal more than the present proposed reduction.

(Signed)

"On behalf of Lowell Textile Council, "Joseph F. Ashton, Secretary."

30 INJURED AS CARS CRASH IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Thirty persons, five of them women, were very seriously, although not fatally, hurt to-day, when two trolley cars collided at the intersection of Market and Sixth streets.

The collision was due to a misunderstanding of orders, and the Sixth street car, running full speed, crashed into the Market street car amidships.

Hurry calls were sent in for ambulances and police reserves, and after half an hour's work the injured were extricated and taken to the hospitals.

The most seriously hurt, who may have internal injuries, are Marguerite Dolan, passenger, and John Piston, motorman, on the Sixth street car.

HUMMEL BIDS JAUNTY FAREWELL TO PRISON

DESPITE COMPLAINTS OF ILLNESS LEAVES CELL WITH LIVELY STEP AND HAPPY SMILE.

NEW YORK, March 19.—"Little Abe" Hummel, the lawyer convicted of subornation of perjury in the Molineux divorce case, left the Blackwell's Island penitentiary this morning with jaunty step and is now being kept in retirement by friends. He is expected to sail for Europe on Saturday.

Hummel's commuted sentence expired at midnight. He had first planned to leave the island at 12:01 a. m., but the rainy night made him hesitate. Then, too, the Commissioner of Charities and Corrections had suggested that he wait until morning in order not to establish a dangerous precedent.

He was a passenger on the first ferry leaving the island to-day, however. When he landed at the East Seventieth street pier he was met by several friends, who hustled him into an automobile. His home is in East Seventy-third street, but Hummel was not driven there at first. Whether he will return there before going abroad is not known.

Nephew Pays $5,000 Fine.

Hummel's $5,000 fine was paid yesterday by his nephew, Abraham Kaffenburgh, so there was nothing to prevent his release.

Friends to-day gave out the same reports as to Hummel's poor health upon which Governor Hughes was urged to pardon him during his imprisonment. Dr. Matz, house physician at the penitentiary, is quoted to-day as saying Hummel is suffering from an incurable disease of the larynx. A trip to Southern France is said to have been recommended as the best thing for his health.

While Hummel is still disbarred from practicing the law, it is reported to-day that on his return from abroad he will become associated in an advisory capacity with a firm of lawyers anxious to succeed to the lucrative divorce practice which once belonged to the firm of Howe & Hummel.

Little Appearance of Illness.

Despite the tales regarding his failing health, there was little in the appearance to indicate any physical breakdown when he arrived in Manhattan to-day. There was almost a flush on his cheek, although throughout the grilling he got on the witness stand in the first Thaw trial color failed to appear there. He walked with a lively step and carried himself just as erectly as in his balmiest days when he was a beau on Broadway.

Hummel bade a happy farewell to the other convicts at the penitentiary with whom he had become friendly during his imprisonment as he kicked off the carpet slippers in which he has trotted about the concrete corridors, and laid aside the prison stripes. To several he has given pledges to take up their cases. These men, remembering the power once wielded by the little attorney, still have confidence in him and believe he will soon free them.

In the prison office Hummel donned the stylish suit he had worn to the penitentiary and put on the high-heeled shoes he formerly affected. The prison regulations require that every prisoner be given a suit and $5 as he leaves. Hummel did not need the suit, and he asked that the $5 be given some one else.

Dodged Work in Prison.

Through his claim of illness during the time he was in prison Hummel escaped eating the coarse prison fare, dodged any work and avoided the lock-step. His imprisonment really was a long rest, with plenty to eat and lots of sleep.

A report had it to-day that Hummel will not sail for Europe Saturday, as had been intended, but will remain for a banquet to be given in his honor Saturday night. The same men who met at his house the night before he went to prison will greet him, it was said. But the occasion will not be one of gloom, and some Broadway cafe will be the scene of the jollification if Hummel decides to remain for it.

GOVERNOR GUILD'S BRAVE STRUGGLE AGAINST DEATH

Muscular Rheumatism and Grip Combine and Reach Region of Chief Executive's Heart---Wife Constantly at Bedside of Her Husband.

Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., was in a gravely critical condition all night in his home, No. 124 Marlboro street, Back Bay.

While the most alarming statements were hurried through the streets late last night and early in the morning hours as to his condition, bulletins from the bedside later in the morning were somewhat reassuring.

Dr. Frederick B. Winslow, the governor's own family physician, who had attended him ever since he was a little urchin on by grip and muscular rheumatism, said early to-day:

"The Governor is holding his own. He passed a fair night, but he is still a very sick man and in a critical condition. There has been no pneumonia form in his sickness. Drs. F. C. Shattuck and Elliott P. Joslin, who have been in consultation with me on the case, are still in deliberation and watching his condition."

Condition Critical.

When the Governor awakened this morning his condition was still critical, though reassuring, and less alarming bulletins were issued to the anxious relatives and the public.

Since the Governor was stricken over a fortnight ago the public would learn little respecting his condition. An air of almost mystery was preserved regarding him.

His first pronounced non-appearance in public was on the occasion of the recent visit of Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York to this city. At the Governor's last public appearance had been at the banquet of the Republican Club of Massachusetts in Symphony Hall, when Secretary of War Taft was the guest of honor, his absence at the banquet of the Governor's Association when Governor Hughes was the speaker occasioned not a little comment.

This was because the serious aspect of the Governor's illness was not known at the time. It was intimated that the Governor used his illness as a pretext not to meet the Governor of New York, as he was supposed to be an adherent of Secretary Taft for the Republican nomination for the presidency.

Serious Turn for Worse.

The fact that the Governor of the Commonwealth was seriously ill, almost at death's door, was not made public until late last night.

Then the most alarming rumors sped through Boston, suburban cities and towns and all over Massachusetts.

Governor Guild's condition took a serious turn for the worse yesterday afternoon. He suddenly began to weaken and his heart was pronouncedly affected. Drs. Winslow, Shattuck and Joslin were hastily summoned and were for hours in consultation in the sick room.

It was agreed that the Governor was in a gravely dangerous condition. He is suffering from a complicated attack of grip and muscular rheumatism. Despite the heroic work of the three skilled physicians, the diseases reached the region of the heart.

Notify Friends and Officials.

Then it was that the news of the threatening death of the State's chief Executive was hurriedly sent to relatives, friends and State officials. While the relatives and friends of Governor Guild knew that he had been ill-spoused for more than two weeks, none of them were prepared for the intelligence that he was in the shadow of death and they were inestimably shocked.

The Governor's condition on Tuesday had been most reassuring. He seemed to be better than he had been since the first day of his illness and his physician, Dr. Winslow, was confident that his distinguished patient was on the road to recovery.

But the unfavorable weather conditions, the weakness caused by the grip and the nervousness arising from prolonged loss of sleep suddenly combined and the Governor took a sad turn for the worse yesterday afternoon and night. As the long hours wore away and the night advanced it became evident to the doctors who then summoned in another physicians, that Governor Guild's condition was growing less and less favorable.

To-day, while he showed some signs of improvement, the doctors feared that he might weaken again. Every effort that human skill could suggest was put forth.

Lodge Hurries to Guild Home.

A number of Governor Guild's close personal friends called this morning at the Governor's home in Marlboro street. Among them were Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington street church, which Governor Guild attends; E. C. Johnson, the father of Mrs. Guild; Miss Catherine Dunbar of Beacon street, Dr. Thomas Dwight, Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Eben S. Draper, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Judge Lovell and Major Talbot Aldrich of the Governor's staff.

Senator Lodge was shocked to learn of the Governor's serious condition when he reached home from Washington.

"I came from Washington to speak before some business men of Nahant on the immigration matters," said the Senator to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, as he departed from the Guild residence, "and you might wonder again. Every effort that human skill could suggest was put forth.

"I went immediately to the house, and it was with pleasure that I learned he was better than reported. I found him resting very comfortably.

The friends of Governor Guild to-day spoke of how the severe illness came at a critical time in his political career. Just before he was confined to his room he had been mentioned far and wide as a possible selection of the Republican party for the vice-presidency.

Crisis in His Political Career.

Recently he had been brought into national prominence, and his friends believed that his chances for the Republican nomination for the second place on their ticket were bright.

His recent trip to Washington with Mrs. Guild, who about a year ago was lying at the point of death, is generally believed to have marked him for high political advancement. Then the announcement that under the advice of his physicians he would not during public speaking for some time was regarded as doubly significant.

Since being confined to his home the Governor has been nominated grand officer of the Crown of Italy by the King of Italy, President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard received the same honor at the same time.

Ever since he was stricken the Governor has been tenderly waited upon by his wife, who recently was the recipient of his own anxious solicitude. Mrs. Guild, before her marriage, was Miss Charlotte H. Johnson. She is a daughter of Edward C. Johnson, and was in November of 1907 that she herself was seized by appendicitis and underwent a dangerous operation. She became Governor Guild's wife in 1892.

$200 FOR THE FASHIONABLE NEW COIFFURE! By Mrs. Cholly Knickerbocker. The appalling cost of women's false hair. How long will it be before American women are wearing wigs? The English 'Bun' and Grecian knot fighting for the place of honor in the new hair dressing. The size of the enormous coiffure shows no signs of growing smaller. See next Sunday's AMERICAN.

ADVANCES IN STOCK MARKET

T. and St. Paul 1, and Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific and steel stocks ¼ higher. Sugar opened ½ up. Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific and Copper opened ¼ lower. Rio opened ½ lower. Pennsylvania, Pacific and Car Foundry were unchanged. New York Central and Anaconda opened ⅛ higher.

At the end of ten minutes the market showed numerous recessions from best prices.

Today's Lesson in The American's Course for Salespeople

No. 11

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Watch the methods of more successful salespeople than yourself. You can learn from those around you.

In a millinery store there were four salespeople selling on practically the same grade of merchandise. After a fairly busy day one had TWICE the amount on her sales-book of any of the others, in fact THREE TIMES that of the lowest of the four.

There had been a good run of customers all day. Was the girl really lucky or was she a better salesperson? The answer is: she was a better salesperson, for she would usually average these figures.

Instead of being jealous of successful clerks, EMULATE THEM.

Why was this millinery girl successful?

For one thing she DID NOT WAIT to be bumped into before she saw a customer. For another thing she quickly got an idea of what the customer wanted and did not have to try on every hat in stock. She was quick to suggest changes to MEET THE CUSTOMER'S IDEAS, and often pleased the customer by selling her even a higher-priced hat than she had started to look at—not because the price was higher, but because the customer was getting what she wanted.

This girl's position was assured and her sales kept her salary above that of her associates. What applied in this case to millinery applies to other stocks. Follow successful people and KEEP LOOKING AHEAD.

Next Lesson in Saturday's American.

Cut out these "lessons." Every Sunday we print a review and self-examination. A good plan is to clip the lessons and reviews out and paste them in a scrapbook. You will then have a manual on salesmanship that you could not buy for a good many dollars. It may be worth hundreds to you in increased salary.

'MERGER MEANS DEATH TO NEW ENGLAND TRADE'

CHARLES H. JONES MAKES A STIRRING PLEA AGAINST MERGER AT STATE HOUSE.

Denouncing any proposition that will allow one Co merger of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad with the Boston & Maine as "a scheme to wipe out competition and place New England in the grip of a gigantic Railroad Trust," representatives of business men and citizens to-day argued before the legislative Committee on Railroads for legislation that will make the "merger" impossible. The hearing was in room No. 446 at the State House. Business men, lawyers and others spoke for and against the "merger" railroad officials, lobbyists and public-spirited citizens packed the room.

Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company and chairman of the transportation committee of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, told the committee that the "Merger" would result in the death of trade for New England.

"Give us anything," he said, "rather than the merging of those two roads, give the Boston & Maine to Harriman or to the Canadian Pacific or to anyone else, whether they know anything about the railroad business or not, but do not, for Massachusetts' sake, allow all semblance of competition to be gobbled up by that gigantic railroad trust that is swooping everything before it in the eastern United States under the name of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

Will Kill New England Trade.

"I know something of the Shoe and Leather industry and I warn this committee that if they vote to favor in any way the proposed merger they are doing something to kill trade in New England. The shoe and leather industry in Massachusetts is at stake. The West is fast gaining a hold and if you wipe out railroad competition here freight rates will be increased—the New Haven must increase its rates for the sake of its stockholders—and the industry here will be dead.

"For ten or fifteen years there has been a tendency on the part of the industry to move westward, the people of the sections where it is now being taken up are just as bright as those of Massachusetts, and they have a great advantage in being near the raw materials, and they should not be given a further advantage of having Eastern competition placed under an even greater transportation handicap than it now bears.

"The merger of course means something to the shipper; either it means better facilities and lower rates or it means poor facilities and higher rates. We began an investigation and to try to find out just what its effect on us would be. We have investigated it with an entirely open mind. We have made over every existing right. We have invited all of the officials of the New Haven road to appear before us and discuss it; we have invited all public men whom we know to be in favor of the merger to tell us why they favored it; we have invited gunboats of other men to come and say we thought would be of value, to tell us their reasons for favoring it, but no one has been able to get but little information from them.

No Benefit in Merger.

"All our invitations have been declined while one exception. That was a man who came before us but said he had nothing and made a very entertaining address, as there was in it nothing informing. And so we have had to investigate it from our own standpoint, and the association has decided by a very large majority that the merger would not be in our interest. We do not desire to embarrass our business with the Haven in any way, for most of our people believe that it is a better road to do business than the Boston & Maine, but we do not see any benefit to ourselves in it.

"I have discussed it as it relates to the transportation of merchandise, for that is our business, and from that point of view can see nothing encouraging in it. We see nothing in the experience of the past or in the suggested reasons for the consolidation that lead us to expete better service, or lower rates.

"The first business of a railroad is to make money for its stockholders, and it is entitled to a profit on its business of course the first thing to be determined is the actual cost of carrying on that business, and that cost I believe is principally regulated by the capital of the corporation and the labor cost.

"I am not going to discuss over-capitalization or fixed charges, although I think everyone will admit that both have enormously increased in the past few years.

Sees Higher Rates.

"Now if both are to be still further increased on more freight hauled, I do not see how rates are to be reduced. I believe that some of the properties they have acquired do not and cannot for some time pay a dividend. We do not object to their development of small communities by means of trolley lines, but we feel that we have a right to object to their placing upon the shoulders of the merchants of this State the burden of paying dividends on such properties.

"It is claimed that better service will result, but I do not see how it can be done. We do not believe that extensive consolidation will result in better service or a less labor cost, for the larger system means that the details of management must get farther away from the head of the system; that it will necessarily lead to red-tape system; that labor will become less efficient and therefore more expensive.

Great Systems Wrong.

"The experience of Massachusetts has shown the fallacy of the theory that benefit is to be derived from making a communication by part of a system. Only a little line from Hanover to North Abington a years ago the people of those communities asked the Old Colony to build a road, and they declined on the ground that it would not pay.

"A public-spirited citizen built the line at his own expense and operated it for years at a profit, but it was finally absorbed by the Old Colony, and where a day to this it has never been operated so well as under the private ownership. No benefit was derived from the merger of the Old Colony with the New Haven, on the contrary the opposite has been the case, for freight rates are higher than they were under the old management, and while the New Haven claims that it has been the increased cost of labor, still the advance has not been noticed on other systems.

"The management of the Boston & Albany shows it because part of a great system has deteriorated to such an extent that it is humiliating to discuss it. With such a past is it to be wondered that we look with distrust upon this attempt of the New Haven to add to its already great burdens? It now has a great opportunity to increase efficiency and decrease transportation cost without going off its own lines, and it is almost out of place for a public body to tell us that it can be done better by increasing the capital and enlarging the system."

Mellen's Talk Misleading.

Taking up the report of the Commission on eCmmerce and Industry, Mr. Jones called attention to that report wherein the New England should count for more in the transportation world, and that this result can be accomplished by the building of public transportation systems. This, he said, is almost the exact language used by Mr. Mellen months ago, and it has a specious sound, but it is absolutely misleading.

"They say that the roads are connecting rather than competing, and while this may be true so far as passenger business is concerned, it is entirely otherwise with regard to freight transportation. We ship over the Boston & Albany to the south of the same western points that we reach by the New Haven and by the Boston & Maine; it costs us 5 cents less. We reach exactly the same points by the Maine routes as by the New Haven, and again the cost is less. It is admitted that by the merger the New Haven will control all transportation in New England.

"They have a monopoly now with the Boston & Albany that shows they are able to control the rates of that road. That means monopoly, and as such I am against it.

"I never knew of a beneficent monopoly; they do not exist. The claim is made now for the purpose of giving up lower rates, but if that was their purpose they could accomplish it easier by not taking on further business of the Boston & Maine and many burdens, and we want to see them bring them on and succeed as they have well in all of them, but we feel that we have a right to object to their plan to be worked out on the present lines and that the burden shall not be placed upon us."

50,000 Oppose Merger.

Representative Norman H. White, vice-president of the Massachusetts Anti-Merger League, presented a petition of 50,000 names of business men who oppose the merger. "We have forty or fifty thousand more names," he said, "that we will offer you within a few days."

Vice-President Byrnes of the New Haven road created a sensation at the hearing when he declared that his company had not gone before the Railroad Commissioners with a request for permission to merge because "it was thought that those who opposed the merger might become 'sore' and ask for the merger themselves. Representative Whitcomb conferred with Mr. Byrnes on the "sore" reference and Mr. Byrnes kept quiet.

Thomas G. Plant, a shoe manufacturer, opposed the merger proposition.

Hon. Wellington Smith of Lee was the only one to favor the merger at to-day's hearing.

FUGITIVE DROPS CLEW TO LOOT AT CAMBRIDGE

A clew dropped by a thief in his flight to escape arrest after being discovered in a store in Cambridge early to-day, led the police to a lodging house at No. 25 Lambert street, where they found a trunk filled with loot that the police say has been taken in a series of Cambridge breaks. The aggregate value of the stuff is several hundred dollars. It was secured from clear stores, book stores and notion stores.

Just before 2 o'clock a fashionable tailoring establishment of John C. Dynham, No. 238 Hampshire street, was broken into, the rear door being pried with a jimmy, and dress suits, walking suits and cloth valued at $200 were packed into suit cases and carried off. The discovery was made by Patrolman John Canny of Station 2.

At 4:15 a. m. Patrolman John Walsh of Division 1 noticed a light flickering in Marston's tobacco and book store at No. 645 Cambridge street. He went to the rear of the store to investigate and found how a burglar lamped through a side window and ran up the street. The officer gave chase. In his flight the fellow dropped a bundle containing cigars, tobacco, cigarettes, writing paper and lead pencils.

The Cambridge police think both jobs were done by the same man.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Tatsu Maru incident between China and Japan has been closed.

PETERS TO BE FITZGERALD'S RIVAL IN 1909?

Congressman Suggested for Mayoralty Run, Says It's Too Early to Declare Intentions.

Congressman Andrew J. Peters, suggested in Washington dispatches as a probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of Boston in 1909, even against his one time close friend, ex-Mayor Fitzgerald—declared to-day that he has not yet given the matter any consideration and said that "it is putting it up too strong" just now to ask him for a declaration of his intentions.

"I have never considered being a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of Boston," said the Eleventh District Congressman to the BOSTON AMERICAN over the long-distance telephone to-day.

"It is really putting it up too strong to ask me that," replied the Congressman, when requested to state whether he would allow his name to be used in the primaries.

"This is my first information on the matter. I have never heard of any dispatch stating that I was to be a candidate. I have hopes of coming back to Washington for a second term. Just about this time I am devoting all my energies with my present position."

Friends of Congressman Peters have been busy for over a month suggesting his availability for the Democratic mayoralty nomination two years ahence.

Among the knowing ones in the field of Boston politics are whispers of rather unusual relations existing between Congressman Peters and ex-Mayor Fitzgerald. And all because of a little speech that Peters the Fitzgerald exhorts believe has begun to loom in the bonnet of the congressman.

BILL ON MONEY SHARKS UP IN HOUSE TO-DAY

A bill intended to make impossible the insurer extortion now practiced by some money lenders, which was unanimously reported to the Legislature by the committee on legal affairs, comes up in the House this afternoon for action, and will be passed. There has been no opposition thus far.

The measure, which was drawn for the committee by Representative Frederic H. Fillion, embodies many of the salient points of the bill drafted by Attorney William N. Osgood of No. 6 Beacon street, who has acted as counsel for many victims of the so-called money sharks.

It goes still further than Mr. Osgood's bill, as it provides for a fine of not more than $300, imprisonment for sixty days, or both, as punishment for any party doing a small loan business without being licensed. Mr. Osgood's bill provided a penalty of $100 fine for violations of the law. The Hillon bill exempts all parties conducting on a business of lending sums of $200 or less at a rate of interest greater than 12 per cent to be licensed by the state or other licensing board, except those companies that are associations now chartered and under the supervision of the bank commissioner.

LOMASNEY TO DEMAND STATE ACQUIRE B. & M.

Ward 8 Ruler Prepares to Make Vigorous Fight at State House for His Bill.

Representative Martin M. Lomasney is preparing to make a vigorous fight at the State House in support of his bill, introduced by Daniel J. Kiley, which asks that the State acquire the capital stock of the Boston & Maine now held by the New Haven road.

The bill provides that:

"1. The Governor, acting with the advice and consent of the council, is hereby authorized and requested to acquire by purchase or otherwise the shares of the capital stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad now held by the New Haven, or by trust or otherwise for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and to give in part payment therefor the bonds of the Boston & Maine Railroad now in the treasury of the Commonwealth and given to the Commonwealth in the year 1900 as authorized by Chapter 426 of the Acts of that year, 1900, in exchange for the 50,000 shares of the common stock of the Fitchburg Railroad Company, representing the original interests of the Commonwealth in the Hoosac Tunnel, then held by the Commonwealth. The remainder of the purchase money shall be raised by the issue of bonds by the Commonwealth in such amounts, at such rate of interest and upon such terms as the Governor and council shall deem expedient.

"2. This act shall take effect upon its passage."

HATTER WANTS TO PAY HIGHER TAXES TO CITY

Requests That His Assessment Be Raised from $15,000 to $50,000.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Granville Daly, who deals in hats at No. 602 Broadway and lives at No. 20 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, has asked the board of tax commissioners to raise his personal assessment from $15,000 to $50,000. This is rather a rare request when most people are seeking to have their personal assessments reduced or wiped out altogether.

Mr. Daly was seen by an AMERICAN reporter at his home last evening. He lives in a comfortable and attractive house and is a fine specimen of the careful, hard working American merchant. The stanly Scotch and Knickerbocker blend of blood in his veins shows in his fine face and in his well built frame.

Mr. Daly seemed rather surprised when asked to give a reason for what he had done.

"Well, what of it?" he remarked. "I didn't know I was doing anything remarkable. I get a great deal out of the city in police and fire protection, and in personal safety, and I thought I should pay adequately for it."

HEATERS PUT BACK IN CARS

Following the publication yesterday in the BOSTON AMERICAN that the Old Colony Street Railway Company had taken the heaters out of their cars on the Hyde Park and Dedham divisions, evidently with an idea of cutting expenses, despite the fact that the law expressly states that the heat shall be turned on continuously until May 15, the cars were run back again into the stables and the heaters reinstalled to-day.

FOOTLIGHT FAVORITES OBJECT TO EVELYN THAW

Girls in "White Way" Company Oppose Her Return to the Stage.

A protest against the return of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to the stage was adopted by the young women of "The Gay White Way" Company to-day, after the subject was broached by five pretty young girls in the company who had been giving the matter serious thought.

The girls decided—and in this their action was indorsed by the cast—that the sensational reputation which Mrs. Thaw has acquired, irrespective of the merits of the Thaw case, hardly added to her dramatic ability or professional standing.

In brief, the girls said:

"There have been altogether too many of these heroines of murder trials stepping from the witness stand to the stage. It lowers the status of dramatics. It puts the entire profession in a false light and it is high time someone protested."

Blanche Ring Non-Committal.

The idea apparently started with Mabel Weeks and Helen Doyle. They spoke to Violet Hopkins and Gertrude Moyer, and then Katherine Bell, hearing the other four talking it over, approved it.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said Miss Weeks. "Let's ask Miss Ring about it."

So the five split it up to Blanche Ring.

"Well, girls," said Miss Ring, after a thoughtful pause, "it's a rather radical thing to do, you know, but if you think that you are right, that your conviction and so one can object to you're expressing it."

"I am sure we are right, Miss Ring," said Gertrude Meyer. "You see, the notoriety Mrs. Thaw attained at the Thaw trial will be used for booming whatever she does. It won't be so much acting for her as it will be Thaw, trial. Now, the girls don't want to be put in the light of being willing to countenance anything for the sake of getting known.

The Tendency of the Times.

"Then it all tends to lower the morale of the stage. Now, lots of us girls live at home when not on the road. We send as much money as we can home in many cases. And we don't want to be misjudged. And the whole tendency of the times is to judge harshly, especially when the public sees people jumping onto the stage just because they have figured in some big sensation.

The other girls nodded in emphasis.

"It isn't against Mrs. Thaw personally that we want to do this," said Violet Hopkins, "it's against the whole idea of the thing, the principle of it."

"Since you take that view of the situation, girls," said Miss Ring, "I'll do anything I can to help along the idea."

As a result Miss Ring volunteered to speak to J. J. Fitzpatrick, the manager of the company, about it, and as a result the company met to-day and adopted resolutions, a copy of which was sent to the Professional Women's League in New York.

STAGE GIRLS PROTEST THAT EVELYN THAW SHOULD ESCHEW ACTING

Whereas, It has been announced that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is preparing to return to the stage, and

Whereas, Whatever the merits of the Thaw trial, she has attained a sensational notoriety which will wholly subordinate any dramatic reputation, and

Whereas, The status of dramatic art will inevitably be lowered by the entrance of such a purely sensational element, therefore

Be it resolved, That we are unalterably opposed to Evelyn Nesbit Thaw appearing on any American stage.

FIGHT TO SAVE JENNIE BLUNT FROM ASYLUM

NEW YORK, March 19.—A bitter legal battle to save Jennie Blunt from the Matteawan State Asylum for the Criminal Insane will begin in the Kings County Court to-morrow. She will be arraigned then on the indictment charging her with shooting Lawyer Charles M. Sanford.

Fearing a plot to railroad her to the asylum without a jury trial, her attorneys, Edward J. Reilly of No. 324 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and John B. Seaman, will demand immediate trial for her.

"Jennie Blunt is not insane," said Mr. Reilly, last night. "We do not purpose to have her sent to an asylum just because certain influences have been brought to bear to prevent her from taking the witness stand.

"Her story will parallel that of Evelyn Thaw. She will tell of orgies in the Original den adjoining Sanford's office at No. 20 Court street, in which many other men as prominent as Sanford in Brooklyn social life took part. The names of these men will be told at the trial and it is fear of this, also, that they have spared no effort to prevent my client from being given a jury trial."

Many young girls will be called to corroborate Jennie Blunt's story of drugged wine and of occurrences which were features of the entertainments given there.

Sanford maintained the Oriental rooms as an adjunct to his office for fifteen years.

FIGHT TO BREAK BIGELOW WILL

Attorneys for the estate of Edwin M. Bigelow of School street, who died three years ago leaving holdings valued at $101,000, are preparing to fight an action which seeks to break the will. All is re ceats with the exception of $1,000, was left to Leslie Hastings, an adopted son.

The will has never been contested because of determined opposition to its provisions. Relatives, including Edwin Bigelow of Worcester, have conducted a fight in an effort to have it disallowed.

Bigelow for forty years lived alone. Miss Bertha Dessarit, who left to 18 Common street, secured counsel and made preparations to fight for a share of the estate. Her grounds for action have never become public.

CITY SURVEYOR HANLEY DIES

Joseph T. Hanley, for several years a surveyor in the engineering department of the city, died at his residence, No. 32 Ashfield street, Roslindale, last night, after suffering from pneumonia.

Mr. Hanley was the third son of the late Colonel P. T. Hanley and was born in Roxbury thirty-three years ago. He was educated in Boston schools, Boston College and Laval University in Quebec. After leaving the latter institution he cruised around South America as a member of the United States Marine Corps.

In 1898 he married Miss Annie McDonough of Roxbury, who with four children, three brothers and four sisters, survives him.

To Owners of Bad Breath--

Foul Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Eating or Drinking Stopped at Once With Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Trial Package To Prove It Sent Free.

Bilious breathers, onion eaters, indigestion victims, cabbage consumers, smokers, drinkers and those with gas on the stomach are in a class all by themselves, distinguished by a powerful bad breath.

They all breathe, and as they breathe, they whiff out odor which makes those standing near turn their heads away in disgust. The principal part of it is that these victims do not realize what a sickening thing a bad, offensive breath is to others.

Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of gases and odors. It absorbs 100 times its own volume of gas.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will put a stop to your bad, offensive breath, and to your belchings, whatever the cause or cause, because the charcoal quickly absorbs all noxious, unnatural odors and gases.

If you suffer from indigestion and belch gas as a result, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will absorb all the gas and make you stop belching.

If on getting up in the morning you have such a bad, bilious breath that you can almost smell it yourself, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will get rid of it for you quickly.

If you have been smoking or chewing, or have been eating onions or other odorous things, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath pure and sweet.

Charcoal is also the best laxative known. You can take a whole boxful at no harm. You will regret. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

And then, too, it filters your blood,—every particle of poison and impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first thing,—your clear complexion.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow charcoal, and just a little honey is put in to make them palatable, but not too sweet.

They will work wonders in your stomach, and make you feel fine and fresh. Your blood and breath will be purified. You will feel clean inside.

We want to prove all this to you, so just send for a free sample today. Then after you get it and use it, you will like them so well that you will go to your druggist and get a 25c box of these Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FOCK, VICTOR IN DUEL, PLANS NEW MEETING

His Challenge to Gen. Gorbatovsky Accepted and Terms Are Being Arranged.

SMIRNOFF IS NEAR DEATH

ST. PETERSBURG, March 19.—General Smirnoff, who was shot in the abdomen in a duel with General Fock, his fellow-officer at the defence of Port Arthur, remains in a critical condition at the military hospital here. There have as yet been no serious developments from his wound, but the surgeons have failed in several attempts to remove the bullet and it is believed an operation will be necessary, from which, in his weakened condition, the patient will be in the gravest danger.

The seconds have not yet agreed on terms for the duel General Fock is to fight next with General Gorbatovsky, who was quite as outspoken at the recent court-martial as was General Smirnoff in his criticism of Fock's conduct at Port Arthur. The controversy is over the question of distance, which Fock's seconds insist shall be at five paces, while Gorbatovsky's insist on fifteen. The two officers will fight as soon as an agreement is reached.

Military men, who regard the code as the proper method for the settlement of such disputes, commend the War Minister for authorizing the encounters, but the public generally and many high civil officials consider the meetings barbarous and calculated, too, to do the government infinite harm and likely to cause the impression abroad that the government approves murder.

General Stoessel's health has failed so rapidly in the past few days that his friends are much alarmed for him, and it is beginning to be believed he will not live even to begin his ten years' term of imprisonment. The antithesis may be interesting on his incarceration while he continues dangerously ill.

JUST BUSINESS

By Morton Birge

According to testimony before the Finance Commission some contractors bid on city contracts, not with the intention of taking the job, but merely to help other bidders.

BRET HARTE wrote of Chinks and their devious way,
But could he have writ of contractors? Nay, Nay!
They oddly construe each "competitive bid"
So all shall know what each competitor did.
But this is JUST BUSINESS.

It isn't collusive, immoral or wrong.
It simply helps every contractor along.
It may cost the city a thousand or two,
But that's of no import to me or to you.
It's JUST BUSINESS.

Highwaymen abound in the street and the park.
This song, "I'm afraid to go home in the dark,"
Isn't funny for those who are robbed o' their pelf,
Nor for the highwayman, for he says to himself:
"It's JUST BUSINESS."

The wily promoter who takes in your roll
And flees is not ruinous, injurious soul.
He but to have money. You had to be Caught; and both of you got just the thing that you ought.
'Twas JUST BUSINESS.

Away with all harsh and impolitic phrase.
Let's be euphemistic the rest of our days.
It isn't robbing, nor worse, of course.
It simply helps every contractor along.
Hug it.
It's JUST BUSINESS.

FITZGERALD MEN OPPOSE FINANCE FUND

Faction of Councilmen Plan to Stop Commission's Work in This Way.

CLASH COMES TO-NIGHT

A movement is on foot among the Fitzgerald supporters in the Common Council to strike out the item of $35,000 for the Finance Commission from the $18,770,256 appropriation bill, which will be reported to-day by the Mayor's committee. It is expected, will bring about a renewal of the fight between the adherents of the Longmore-McNary-Fitzgerald combine and the followers of James Donovan and P. J. Kennedy. If the attempt is made to shut off the Finance Commission investigation by refusing any appropriation for it, the Donovan-Kennedy councilmen will be found lined up with the republicans for the passage of the appropriation.

Even should the Republicans themselves complete harmony is not expected to-night. Despite Mayor Hibbard's effort for economy the bill as it will be reported by the committee on Appropriations is a record-breaker, being padded up by the committee so as to equal the full amount which the city by law is authorized to raise by taxation in the current year. The committee added up this bill $630,521, which the Mayor could have put in, but which he held back in the interest of economy. It is the first time since 1905 that the appropriation bill has equalled the full amount authorized.

The increases made by the committee over the Mayor's allowance for the several departments were as follows: Bath department, $35,000; building department, $65,000; hospital, $1,000; institutions registrar, $3,000; fuel, $25,000; public celebrations, $350; overseers of the poor, $6,150; printing of city documents, $15,000; public grounds, $55,000; reserve fund, $3,271; bridge, $10,000; sanitary, $90,000; street cleaning and watering, $100,000; street, $150,000; ferry, $10,000; supply, $4,500; street laying out, $15,000.

SCION OF RICH LYNN FAMILY HELD; VAGRANT

Man Now Serving Time in Maine Jail Formerly Prosperous Business Man.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 19.—Irving M. Crafts of Lynn, Mass., scion of a wealthy New England family, formerly a prominent business man in the Bay State city, but who recently met with financial reverses, is to-day serving ninety days in the Penobscot County Jail on a charge of vagrancy.

Crafts, shortly after his failure to meet the demands of his creditors, left his home city and was lost sight of by both friends and relatives, but it was supposed that he had gone to some other State to begin life anew.

He wandered to Maine and was arrested in Calais as a vagrant and sentenced to jail.

His relatives have just received word of his plight, and they have sent a petition to the executive department at the State House asking for his pardon.

They also announce that they stand ready to pay all his bills and the costs of the court if they can secure his liberty.

The matter will come up for hearing at the April meeting of the Governor and Council.

ADRIATIC, WITH ANNA GOULD ON BOARD, ARRIVES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Accompanied by her two children, Miss. Anna Gould formerly the Countess de Castellane, arrived here to-day on the White Star liner Adriatic, which reached quarantine about noon. Tor visit here is expected to last several months, and she is said to have made no official plans for returning to France. She appeared on the passenger list as Mrs. Mif.

Mme. Gould's sister, Miss Helen Gould, inclined the rumors circulated here that she would not go down the bay to meet her sister at Quarantine, but would be at the pier to receive her. It was thought that her brother, George Gould, would also be at the pier.

Mr. Prince Helie de Sagan, a cousin of Count Boni, who has been an ardent suitor for Miss Gould's hand since her divorce is expected here within a week. It was at first reported he would come by the same steamer, but this he did not do. He secured a passport, however, saying he intended visiting the United States.

GERSTUNI, CZAR'S BITTER ENEMY, DIES

Private cable messages from Paris announce the death from consumption of Gregory Gershuni, the man who was considered the head of the Russian Socialist Revolutionary party, and whose name is from the Akatui prison, Siberia, in a cask partly filled with cabbages in November, 1906, forms one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of the Russian revolution.

He visited America in 1904 and made twice in Boston, in the Tremont Temple, under the auspices of the Long Distance League.

Gershuni was a native of Shavel, in the province of Kovno, and a graduate of the Kieff University, where he studied chemistry. In the early nineties he became interested in the movement of the emancipation of the Russian people, and shortly afterward became the leader of the fighting brigade, which waged a bitter war against all officials guilty of atrocities.

For years he escaped the Czar's spies, until a traitor in the ranks gave him up to the police. He was sentenced to death after delivering an address which forms the platform of the Russian radicals, but, owing to the fear of creating a disturbance should he be executed, the sentence was commuted to life-long imprisonment in Schlusselburg fortress.

When that fortress was closed in February, 1906, he was sent to Akatui, the dreaded mines of Siberia. Every effort of the revolutionists was bent on getting him out, and they finally succeeded, despite the vigilance of the officials.

But his sufferings and privations told on him, and, while in Boston, he already complained of the bronchitis which at last carried him off to his grave.

He spent the last few days of his life in a hospital in Geneva. Gershenin's health had been undermined by his long terms of imprisonment. His friends with the greatest difficulty kept hi inhidden from the police while he was in Russia, and finally succeeded in transporting him to Geneva, where he lingered only a few days. His body probably will be taken to Paris for burial.

'REUTERDAHL CRITICISM JUSTIFIED'---CONNOLLY

SEA STORY AUTHOR ADMITS IMPROVEMENTS IN CONSTRUCTION ARE DESIRABLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—James Benton Connolly, writer, of Boston, who made the cruise from Hampton Roads with Admiral Evans's fleet as the special civilian representative of President Roosevelt, has arrived in San Francisco from San Diego, and left for his home in Boston. He will make his report unofficially to the President, but was not adverse to telling the net results of his observations on the long trip.

He had nothing but praise for the manner in which the vessels "behaved" under the great strain, but he also defends Reuterdahl in the latter's recent criticism of the battleships. His statement, summarized, is as follows:

"The passage of the Magellan Straits, of the perils of which so much has been said, was made by the fleet at regulation speed at regulation intervals. The worst part of that passage, from the Straits into the Pacific, was made at night in the usual formation in a fog and at ten knots an hour without one ship for a single instant endangering the next in line.

"It might be mentioned that for several days after that passage the fleet proceeded through almost solid fog without a stop. For hours together the fog was so thick that the ship could not see her neighbor 400 yards away.

Used Whistles and Searchlights.

"To be sure, they used for whistles, searchlights and towing spars, every device, in fact, known to the expert navigator of to-day, but that is to their credit also; brain, even as much as nerve and skill, is part of the equipment of a modern naval officer nowadays.

"Another thing, this fleet impressed, as no one thing ever did before, upon the minds of the people of the South American Republics the military power of the United States.

"To one who has not seen it, it may not be easy to imagine the effectiveness of the spectacle of this great fleet steaming in perfect formation, six miles an hour into a foreign harbor, holding their speed and their order clear up to the time of anchorage, to see the ships, at a signal from the flagship wheel off on their heels and in divisions of four, swing into their lanes.

"At every port of the men were given liberty. At no port did they reflect anything but credit upon the service and the nation. They were clean, well-set, intelligent looking, well-behaving young fellows, three or four thousand of them some days making rounds of the shops, museums, anything, any place that would interest the young fellow eager to see the world, and among all these thousand so few of them played the rowdy that we all had to feel proud of them.

"Highest Class Afloat."

"This great fleet of ours, in its personnel and material, is unquestionably the highest class afloat. Its great cruise has finished has furnished another concrete illustration of American efficiency. It has proved the standard of military efficiency for the fleets of the world. It is the great naval cruise of all history, and at no time could it have failed to make a perfect schedule.

"Thus on the last leg from Callao to Magdalena Bay no trouble was experienced in beating the schedule by two days and even at that the fleet could have come several hours faster, for the first nine ships of the fleet could possibly have come that last 3,000 miles at a seventeen-knot clip.

Room for Improvement.

"As to the lately published criticism of the construction of our ships, I would hardly care to be quoted at length on that. Reuterdahl is a friend of mine, and I have some friends under fire in the department, but I don't think that Reuterdahl had any notion of criticising the seagoing personnel generally. Of course we have a few dubious ones in our ships, but there is no question in my mind but that our officers and men could more than hold their own with those of any other nation. At any rate, I know I would rather take a chance with one of them with any other when it comes to a show down.

"Without going into details, it is foolish to deny the fact that our ships can be improved in construction. The swivel chair critics in the department are hardly any different from the politicians in any other department.

"They all want to hold their jobs, and their criticism comes the first move to prove that it is not so. I should say that what we lack mostly in our construction corps is creative genius.

"It is no sort of argument to advance that our ships are as good as those of the navy or that navy, or the other navy. We seem to get in the habit of imitation. Let England build a new kind of a ship and we follow her. We rush in and build a ship something like it. Some times we get a pretty good ship and sometimes we get a collection of experimental mechanisms. I am not suggesting any remedy, but we never will lead the world in naval construction until we quit more imitation. The

GIRL IN POISON MYSTERY LIVED IN FALL RIVER

Fred Hollingsworth of Hartford, Conn., has given the police of this city a new clew by which the mystery surrounding the attempted suicide of pretty Elizabeth Moran at a Tremont street hotel, and who is now at the City Hospital in a dying condition, may be cleared.

The girl gave her address as Adams street, Lowell, but, according to Hollingsworth, she resides at 625 Stafford street, Fall River.

The young man was a schoolmate of the girl in Fall River and he says that while he had not seen her for more than a year he had corresponded with her, but did not know she was in Boston.

"The last I heard of her was from Fall River," he says, "and at that time she did not intimate that she would attempt suicide. She must be crazy."

"Let me die," she screams at the physicians in her delirium. "I want to die. I'm tired of this life. I won't tell you why I took poison. I just want to die."

In company with a city officer, Miss Morna arrived at the Crescent House and registered as "Miss E. Morna." The clerk man had in his hand a dollar bill, as if he had been given the money to pay for her room. He handed it to the clerk and went out to his cab, while Miss Moran was shown to her room.

Clerk Straight early yesterday morning heard a groaning from the young woman's room, and, forcing open the door, he found her lying on the bed, her lips horribly burned by the carbolic acid she had taken in the early part of the night.

The tiny chloroform bottle was drained.

When the girl realized in her tired moments the young woman stoically refuses to tell the physicians why she tried to take her life. She was well dressed, although rather flashily.

It is believed by the police that a cabman who drove the young woman to the hotel can throw some light on the case, and they are now trying to locate him.

RECEIVER FOR CHINA MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.

Judge Sheldon of the Supreme Court, on the petition of Insurance Commissioner Frank H. Hardison, to-day appointed Attorney Arthur D. Hill temporary receiver of the China Mutual Insurance Company, a Massachusetts corporation doing a marine insurance business.

A temporary injunction was issued, ordering the officers and agents of the corporation to refrain from doing further business; also an order of notice, returnable March 27, ordering the company to show cause if any, why a permanent receiver should not be appointed.

The Insurance Commissioner informed the court that he had made an investigation into the affairs of the company, and that in his opinion the concern is insolvent, and its condition such as to render further operations of business hazardous to the public and the policy holders.

President Edmund A. Poole of the company says the fire losses and the ocean losses on marine insurance last year, which was the worst in his forty years of experience, also to the depreciation in the market value of the company's securities.

The company has about $9,000,000 in gross risks outstanding, a portion of which is reinsured. On January 1 last the company's financial statement showed a capital impairment of $28,000.

The directors are George A. Amerige, J. Henry Sears, T. Quincy Browne, William H. Lord, John Strachan, Edwin J. Poole and Peter H. Crowell.

EVEN BOSTONIANS CAN LEARN HOW TO EAT

FEW PEOPLE IN BOSTON REALLY KNOW HOW.

This is not an essay on table manners.

It is simply a little good advice about one of the great American defects—too rapid eating.

Nothing makes life so miserable, or interferes so widely with the usefulness of the average American, as indigestion.

The quick-lunch counters and the great majority of restaurants, even the home dining-rooms, are simply manufactories of stomach troubles.

Slow eating will solve one-half the problem of ill health. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach can with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore their digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na tablet before each meal, so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion and the unpleasant full feeling with which so many suffer after meals.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

KING VICTOR IS PLEASED WITH D'ABRUZZI'S MATCH

ITALIAN RULER SAID TO PLAN HONORS AND TITLE OF NOBILITY FOR ELKINS.

LONDON, March 19.—Not only does King Victor of Italy expect the Duke of Abruzzi to marry Miss Katherine Elkins, but his Majesty is reconciled to the match and plans high honors for the Duke and the bride's father, according to dispatches from Rome.

The Duke will be promoted immediately following his wedding, it is asserted, to the post of vice-admiral, and the Duchess will be given one of the royal palaces either at Naples or Venice as a residence.

On Senator Elkins, it is said, the King will confer an Italian title of nobility, that there may be no question of disparity in rank between the bride and bridegroom.

Miss Elkins, it is rumored, will be made a "royal highness" in her own right when she weds the Duke of Abruzzi, and any sons the couple may have will be Princes of the royal house, with the right of succession to the throne.

SENATOR ELKINS SAID TO BE OPPOSED TO DUKE D'ABRUZZI

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins is said to be very much opposed to the union of his daughter, Katherine, to the Duke d'Abruzzi, and the prospect of becoming allied with a reigning house does not appear to him of sufficient importance to overcome his objections.

The report from London that the King of Italy plans high honors, including a title, for the Senator, is taken to indicate that a determined effort is to be made to placate the Irate father, although it is admitted that there is no likelihood of the Senator's renouncing his rights of American citizenship for anything that the King may offer him.

But no one doubts that love will triumph despite all parleys, and wedding plans have already sufficiently progressed for the young couple to plan their wedding trip, the objective point of which is to be the North Pole.

Will Renounce Her Religion.

Miss Elkins, it is said, will renounce her religion and will embrace the Roman Catholic faith, this being one of the few requests the Duke has made.

The honor of having played the part of Dan Cupid in this international romance, which continues to be the principal topic of society on two continents, falls to a Boston woman, Mrs. Larz Anderson, and it is now said that the official announcement of the engagement will be made next Saturday evening at a dinner to be given in honor of the Duke at the Washington home of Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson.

"My sister is a very determined young woman, has experienced a change of heart because on his return from his last trip North the Italian government refused to supply funds for further explorations, and that in Miss Elkins he has found an American heiress whose money will enable him to complete his task, give added strength to the displeasure with which the young lady's friends view the romance.

Still it is the general belief that when the Duke returns to Italy, which he proposes to do before Easter, Miss Elkins will cross the ocean as the Duchess d'Abruzzi.

Say Duke is Jealous.

Gossip in Rome has it that the Duke is violently jealous of "Billy" Hitt, that Miss Elkins prefers Hitt, but that her family is anxious to have her marry the royal Duke who, while away from her, sends her a daily message by cable.

It is recalled that the Duke of the Abruzzi's mother was not of royal blood, but her marriage was not considered morganatic, and she enjoyed all the privileges of her husband's rank and even became the Queen of Spain. It was during this period of her life that the Duke was born at Madrid.

The opinion prevails among persons of the Court circle that if the marriage takes place it will not be viewed as a morganatic alliance. They do not admit even the possibility that the American girl would accept any inferior position or that the Duke's pride would consent to it.

At the Italian Embassy here nobody will answer any query about the Duke or his whereabouts. All have been instructed to know nothing. The Ambassador is inaccessible, and attaches, always accommodating at other times, are too busy to see reporters.

Miss Elkins Is Absent.

The Italian Ambassador entertained at dinner in honor of the Duke last night, but neither Miss Elkins nor her parents were numbered among the guests. Society is unable to understand the absence of Miss Elkins at least.

The Duke went out alone several times yesterday, each time using the big touring car of the Italian Ambassador, in which he was held up last Spring while the party was speeding along the Conduit road. He evidently made several visits, but it was not known where he went.

Katherine Elkins, though one of the most popular girls in Washington and West Virginia, has escaped being reported engaged more than any other girl of her set. She is a noted horsewoman, and has spent the greater part of her time since her formal entry into society in the various hunt clubs to which she belongs. While she has returned to thoroughly enjoy life at the capital and has been the moving spirit in the affairs of the younger set, she has not permitted sentiment to interfere with her fun, and has avoided off all dangers of a heart entanglement.

Had Many Admirers.

One of her devoted admirers this Winter has been Joseph Leiter, who has entertained her a number of times and whose guest she was not long ago with a number of other young people, at a breakfast at the Chevy Chase Club, following the Bachelors' last cotillon of the season.

Preston Gibson has frequently been Miss Elkins's host at luncheon parties during the current season. But so far no could be learned the young woman took none of these attentions seriously.

By wedding the Duke Miss Elkins may become related to King Edward, as recent reports from Rome assert that an elder brother of the Duke of Aosta, the Count of Turin, is about to take a wife from the large betrothed of Princess Margaret of Connaught, niece of King Edward. Princess Patricia is one of the most beautiful girls in the royal set of England. She is twenty-one years old and is known to her intimates as "Princess Pat," having been born on St. Patrick's Day and christened Princess Victoria Patricia.

PETERS PROBES B. & M. THREAT IN TAFT FIGHT

HAVERHILL, March 19.—Naming John Cronin, Jr., a car service clerk in the employ of the Boston & Maine Railroad, as the man who informed him of the railroad's attempt—that employes must cease talking Taft or quit work for the road—District Attorney Peters announced to-day that he proposes to probe deeply into the matter and will confer with higher officials of the railroad.

Already the District Attorney has informed John Hunnewell, the local agent of the railroad, that it discharges of men as Cronin claims to have been told they would be, there is trouble ahead for the railroad.

Cronin presided Tuesday night at a rally held in behalf of the two Taft candidates for delegates in the Sixth district, Charles M. Hoyt of Haverhill and Alber Vittum of Beverly. Cronin declares that on reporting for work Wednesday morning, Agent Hunnewell gave him thirty-six hours to make up his mind whether to quit Taft politics or the employ of the railroad.

Cronin went at once to the district attorney, who is also a strong Taft man. The thirty-six hours allowed Cronin, as he tells his story, expires this afternoon.

The matter has been brought to the attention of President Tuttle both by the local agent and the District Attorney.

BUSINESS OF TELEPHONE IS GROWING FAST

During the year 1907 the business of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company increased by leaps and bounds, according to the report just issued by Theodore N. Vail, president of the company.

In his report Mr. Vail sets forth at length figures showing the financial condition of the country, and discusses the question of rates. There were 3,339,000 stations in use in the system at the close of the year and the wires of the company cover 8,010,000 miles. The toll calls for the year aggregated 5,097,000,000.

Although there are 1,525,280 shares of the stock of the company outstanding, the stock is very well distributed and is in the hands of 23,453 stockholders, which makes an average of less than fifty-six shares each.

ATTACKED WIFE; LOSES $2,700 HELD IN $1,000 WHILE IN FAINT

Because his wife Mary did not have his supper ready for him when he came home last night, James G. Morrison, forty-seven years of age, of No. 380 West Broadway, South Boston, is alleged to have kicked her, finally drawing a knife and stabbing her in the abdomen. Morrisey was arraigned in court to-day charged with drunkenness and assault with intent to kill.

Morrisey pleaded guilty to the drunkenness charge and not guilty to the assault charge. His case was continued until March 26 in $1,000 to await the result of the injuries to his wife.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 19.—While he was suffering from a fainting spell in the Woonsocket station yesterday morning, John H. Martin, a passenger on a train from Williamsatic to this city, suffered the loss of $2,700 from an inside pocket. No trace of the robbers can be found.

Mr. Martin did not discover his loss until he reached Waterman's stables in this city, and then he immediately reported the matter at headquarters. Inspectors were detailed at once, but there was little work on and no clue to the money was found.

FORMER TENNIS CHAMPION HERE FOR CONTESTS

British Athlete, Who Bars Meat From Diet, Looks Picture of Health.

OTHERS ON THE IVERNIA

Eustace H. Miles, for nine years amateur champion tennis player of England and for two years champion of the world, from whom Jay Gould last year won the amateur title, was a passenger on the Cunarder Ivernia, which reached Boston to-day from Liverpool. He was accompanied by Peter Latham, professional tennis and racquet champion of the world. They are on their way to New York, where Miles will compete in the championship games which open April 6.

Looking the picture of health, Mr. Miles declared to an AMERICAN reporter that the secret of his condition is the fact that for twelve years he has not eaten any meat. "I am forty years old," said Mr. Miles, "but I can go a month without playing and then be in as good condition as ever."

Speaking of Jay Gould, the American player who defeated him last year, Mr. Miles said: "Mr. Gould started too young and played too hard for a young man. He is now at his zenith and will go stale if he is not careful."

Mr. Miles and Mr. Latham went to Hotel Lenox.

Others who came in on the Ivernia were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hopewell and their daughter, Miss Ruth Crosby of Newton.

Also on board were three Africans of the Fanti tribe. They were under the leadership of Rev. Frank Gardner, a missionary, who brings R. Aspitah and J. A. Imsiful, two boys, to attend school at Livingston College, Salisbury, N. C., where they will fit themselves for missionary work.

The Ivernia carried 36 saloon, 260 second cabin and 4,001 steerage passengers.

LODGE SNUBS CARNEGIE IN VIEW OF CROWD

Ironmaster Returning From Conference With Roosevelt Gets a Surprise.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Andrew Carnegie, after coming from Washington yesterday, where he was reported to have offered the President a large salary to take up personal work at the end of his term, was disagreeably surprised by receiving a pronounced snub from Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the incident occurred on the Jersey City ferryboat and was witnessed by a large number of people who were astonished at the attitude of the New England statesman.

On the invitation of his confidential with President Roosevelt, Mr. Carnegie was on slaughter results so as to give much probability to the Washington report. Concerning other matters he talked freely with the reporter, whom he took down in his motor car from the Pennsylvania railroad station in Jersey City.

It was coming across on the ferryboat from Jersey City to Twenty-third street that Mr. Carnegie recognized Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as a fellow passenger. The Massachusetts Senator had come from Washington on the same train as Mr. Carnegie, although the latter had not observed Mr. Lodge during the trip.

Assured that the man in question was undoubtedly Senator Lodge, the ironmaster again strutted before him. This time Mr. Carnegie was plainly slightly miffed. Senator Lodge, however, stood like marble and gazed ahead at passing river craft.

Just why Senator Lodge should snub Mr. Carnegie is a matter that even the ironmaster is unable to account for. It seemed a plain deliberate snub, for there is small likelihood of Senator Lodge being unable to recognize the little philanthropist. Everybody else on the boat had recognized Mr. Carnegie and had crowded about him for close inspection. The crowd even followed him when he entered his automobile at the ferry entrance.

There was consternation among a crowd of merrymakers in a dance hall at Lawrence last night when Boston policemen, in the midst of a waltz, stepped in, took Philip Trembly, twenty-two, from his fair young partner and arrested him upon a charge of the attempted larceny of $17 on the night of March 1 from Melvin A. Mode, twenty-five, of Aberdeen street, Back Bay.

It was reported to the police last Mode, Trembly and Frank Clark, the latter of Haverhill, had been drinking together in Boston on the night of the occurrence. When Mode, on his way home, stepped from a car at Beacon street and Massachusetts avenue, he was attacked by two men and knocked down. They were going through his pockets when policemen arrived, Both ran.

Patrolman Stillings chased one of the men, and in his flight the fellow fell from a railroad bridge and broke his kneecap. He was taken to the hospital, and Mode identified him as Clark, one of his companions. The other man, alleged to have been Trembly, got away, and the police had since been searching for him.

POLICE MAKE ARREST DURING MERRY WALTZ

BOECK HELD FOR SWINDLE OF $250,000

NEW YORK, March 19.—F. Edward Boeck, art connoisseur, jewel expert, friend of millionaires, self-styled Chinese war agent and swindler to the extent of $250,000, was arrested in San Francisco to-day. He will be held for the New York police.

Boeck was one of the cleverest and most picturesque swindlers who ever operated in New York. He disappeared in May of last year, and his disappearance caused the failure of Edward W. Ingram, jeweler and dealer in art goods at No. 4 West Thirty-ninth street, who was Boeck's creditor to the extent of $5,000.

A man of fine appearance and charming personality, Boeck was an acquaintance of Simon Guggenheim, J. P. Morgan, Senator William A. Clark and other millionaires. He was a Polish-American and came back to this country from China during the St. Louis Exposition, in the suite of Prince Pu Lun, confidential secretary to the Emperor of China, and in charge of the Chinese exhibits at the Exposition.

Folly of the Stamp Flirtation

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT a day passes that I do not receive two or three letters asking an explanation of what I believe is called the "stamp flirtation."

About six months ago I wrote an article on this subject, but it evidently did not reach all my readers, for the question seems still unsolved for many of them.

I am afraid I cannot give any satisfactory information on the subject, but it is my privilege to give advice, and I gladly do so.

In the first place, I do not know the language of the stamp flirtation, and if I did I do not think I would spread any such foolish information.

This much, however, I do know, and that is that stamps placed upside down or in the wrong part of the envelope give trouble to the post office officials. The proper place to attach a postal stamp is in the upper right hand corner of the envelope.

Carelessness in addressing or stamping an envelope betrays ignorance on the part of the writer.

Abstain from Follies

I BELIEVE there is also a handkerchief flirtation, and there may be a glove or a hat flirtation for all I know. But if you take my advice, girls, you will abstain from any of them.

Well-bred, modest girls do not resort to that cheap form of pleasantry.

Supposing that placing the stamp in the lower left-hand corner of the envelope signifies "I love you." Do you think any self-respecting girl would descend to such a method of declaring her affection?

And if a man is not man enough to come out and declare his love openly, it is no compliment to have him declare it through the medium of a postage stamp.

All such "flirtations," as they are called, are vulgar, and I trust my girls are above indulging in them.

While we are upon it we might as well talk of the other kind of flirtation, which is much worse. I mean the flirtation which begins by attracting the attention of some man in the street.

Some Men Are Brutes

AS a rule, men do not annoy girls without provocation. There are brutes, of course, who will ogle a girl without the least encouragement, but they are scarce, fortunately.

It is all very well to say, "That man has annoyed me and I gave him absolutely no encouragement," but are you quite sure that you did not stare at him, and that your manner was not rather misleading? Very often a girl stares at a man more than she realizes.

I tell you positively, girls, that modesty of manner is the only thing that protects a girl. If you look bold you will receive scant respect.

Leave all flirtations—stamp, handkerchief and otherwise—out of the question, and be content to be modest, lady-like girls.

You will find that those are the girls who win in the long run. They are the girls that men seek when they are looking for wives.

What Betty Puts Away for Lent

By Nell Brinkley

"Bettina lifted up her voice, and fluttered her fingers over her head for raining ashes. And after that she wrapped her poor Billy in perfumed bands and put him away in camphor and tears."
NELL BRINKLEY.

"All the piled-up wonder of rippled hair has fallen! It parts now in a straight white mark from the crown of her head to above her brows."

First, Marcelled Hair, Then the Furbelows

ALL the Bettinas are truly Betty Angel-faces now, for Lent has come.

All the piled-up wonder of rippled hair has fallen! Ochone-alloo! It parts now in a straight white mark from the crown of her head to above her brows and is there with her wavy nose, and it swoops down over her ears, and she winds a meek bald accent in white, pat on.

And the curling irons and marcel waves are dumb and wound about with white paper and tucked away at the very back of her dressing table drawer. And she goes into her little white bed these nights in madonna braids, instead of unclipped knots that she can feel dimly all the night through, lurking into her head like pebbles.

Oh, Betty Angel-face, I see you now in your eyes in solemn wise, and droop your mouth, and put your two hands, with the pinky fingers of them together under your chin, and the chaste kiss on your lips at that minute while Billy held his breath and looked at your pure white, holy dust that Pierola's weavers spin yellow hair out of that Billy will weave it was always and always Lent, and your hair was period in a line of white from the crown of your head to above your brows in a line with your nasy nose!

Poor Betty Angel-face had so many things to put away in tissue paper, along with the rending to close the drawer on and lock curling irons and the waves! And when away, each one was worse than the one that went before.

The hair was first and the day-it came down the kid brother of Betty sang "Moon Face" till murder and wrath rose in her throat.

But when Billy came and she asked him

Even Bonbons and, Worst of All, Billy!

"You turn up your eyes in solemn wise, and droop your mouth, and put your two hands, with the pinky fingers of them together, under your chin."

about the parted mop and the hidden ears —and caught her under lip with her teeth and a big tear rolled down her chin—Billy swore by all the fates and white graces that it was beauteous and was undrous fine; and after that the hair didn't hurt.

And then the dresses of Betty! The frills and the frou-frous had to be trimmed down, and Betty must climb her into a silent little black gown, with not a flaunting ruffle or a shouting spot of color on it.

But a naughty little wink and glimmer of a giggle grew in Betty's eyes, and the little sunk corners of her mouth flicked for the black was silent and the trimming off of fluffs and frills left it a princess.

Oh, ho! Just because it must be black and frill-less, like a nun, it needn't be callco with a basque!

And nothing, mother! Bon-bons were next in a row. And there was wailing and desperate scheming over them. But Betty Ann-face—"put" on her finger and crossed her heart to take her sassy nose between her forefinger and her thumb and turn her eyes the other way when she saw an open box but with smooch, satiny sniffy chocolates under the paper lace.

But while she crossed her heart, maybe she whispered "over the left" in her own ear, and thought a little think that when Billy sent some she might figure out a way to eat them. It was only just a little box!

But the last in the row was Billy; and then the sky fell in and Bettina lifted up her voice and fluttered her fingers over her head for raining ashes!

And after that she wrapped her poor Billy in perfumed bands and put him away in camphor and tears. Until after Lent.

Oh, boy! Lent—will he stay? For that was the worst in the row.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

PUT IT IN THE BANK

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-one years old, and am keeping company with a young man twenty-two years old. We have been keeping company for the past seven months. Now, Miss Fairfax, I love this young man, and he returns me my very dearly. I would like to have your opinion of the following points: Do you think it proper for a young lady to take money from her affianced, as he wishes me to do for him? The reason for this is that he is afraid that he may become a spendthrift, by carrying the money around with him; he wishes me to take the money from him and keep it until we are going to get married. I think that if a young man cannot save his money before marriage he could never do so after, but he claims that it would teach him to save, and after we are married he will give me all his money. Now, do you think if I keep his money that this would teach him to be a saving man? If so, I would willingly do this favor for him. But we ask you for your advice and will abide by what you say. CONSTANT READER.

YES, I think it would be quite right for you to save his money for him. Put it in the bank in his name. Never keep it in the house. Deposit it as soon as he gives it to you, and never be tempted to borrow any of it.

Daily Short Story

Bobby's System

By Margaret Carruthers

(Copyright, 1907, by W. R. Hearst.)

BOBBY BILLINGS was ideally happy as he rowed rapidly across Sugar Island toward State Island, looming invitingly ahead.

"Oh, Bobby, there is just the spot. That little cove will be just right for the boat and we can fish off the rocks."

Bobby swung the tiny craft up to the bank, and helping Eleanor out first removed and arranged the lunch. "It is fair to love and war, he thought, as he heard Eleanor's low call and threw her own far out into the clear blue St. Lawrence.

Eleanor had braced her pole between two convenient rocks and was calmly fishing her white skirt above the trim ankles.

"Fishing," began Bobby, reflectively, his eyes fixed hypnotically on the many-colored bob dancing fantastikngly on the stream, "is the most fascinating pursuit of mankind. I believe I have heard that men were more fascinated by it than by—"

"Well, then, you ought to be very happy, indeed," said Eleanor, peering into the empty basket at his feet.

"You just wait. This fly is a wonder, and they will soon be taking notice."

"But you know, Bobby, we promised to catch enough for dinner, and there are fourteen healthy, hungry people dependent upon our success, who can eat like a circus menagerie, to say nothing of the chaperone."

"I'll not try to catch enough to go around; besides, I hate chaperones. We've been camping a week, and this is the first minute I've had you to myself. Just when I think I am to be alone with you up bobs a chaperon. Why, I wouldn't be surprised if there was one on the line!" he added, jerking his pole up and down vindictively. "Two chaperons for fourteen people is altogether too rich for my system."

"And why, may I ask, is a rear system?" She grabbed at her pole that had slipped half its length into the water.

"Eleanor Robbins, you have a most irritating way of playing with a fellow's weak —and his heart also," he added, after a pause.

"The System"

"I wasn't playing. I was honestly seeking information. The desire for knowledge is strong within me, and I really would like to know what system you were working on."

"Well, Bobby Percheron is coming down to-morrow to spend a couple of days with us," he retorted.

"Do you think he would qualify as a teacher?" she asked, sweetly.

"Humph. The old fossil," grunted Bobby.

"Fossil! Why, Bobby, he is only thirty-six and he is certainly a traveler and a man of brains."

"Your remark is meant to infer that I am a mere matter of skeletal bulk and dern. For, by removing the sleeves of you further aggravate me by getting your hair tangled with mine just as I am about to have a bite."

"Really, Bobby, I hadn't realized that you had attained that degree of psychic development necessary to tell when fish are about to bite."

"Personally, continued Bobby, "Sir George bores me hugely and I think I'll run up to town for the two days he intends to illuminate the camp with his intellectual light"—and he went on—"would you mind telling me, Miss Robbins, if you intend to marry that dried up, foolish old fossil?"

"He hasn't asked me yet," with a toss of her pretty head that might have implied that she was prepared and expected further developments.

"If I had known that my vacation was to be spoiled by that idiotic old chaperon—"

"As Bad as That?"

"Oh, Bobby, he is really as bad as all that? Sounds five times wickeder than Sir George, and twenty times as old."

"Don't make any differences under which head you classify him. If he is coming I am going back to the city. You know, Eleanor, I asked you several times last Winter to marry me, and couldn't even get you to consider the matter seriously. I thought perhaps this trip might help—the moonlight nights—the hammock—but if that old fossil is to come here I have nothing further to say."

"Oh, so hammocks are included in your system? But I never sat in a hammock with Sir George."

"I could imagine no greater joy than a hammock and that old ossified idiot," he answered, sarcastically.

"Thanks, Bobby, for the suggestion. When you are in the sweltering city next Monday night, gasping for a breath of air, I shall be remembering and testing your idea and trying—the hammock—the moonlight—and, Bobby, its scenery here is simply irresistible."

Bobby was raging within, but outside all was calm. He removed another struggling fish from her line and rebaited her hook, but all the while thinking of his system. He blamed the chaperon for all his disappointment. Had he been left alone everything would have been all right. Suddenly, with the inspiration "heaven-born" or "wicked," according to one's point of view, he thought of a plan.

The fates (and the fishes) were kind to Bobby, for just then his pole slipped with an unexpected jerk, and in an effort to regain it he slipped on the smooth rocks and he found himself floundering about in the river.

Eleanor emitted a terrifying yell, and as he caught a glimpse of her white, drawn face he suddenly remembered the tricks he had learned in his boyhood and instantly disappeared.

Eleanor stood motionless, her hands clutching her skirt convulsively, her eyes fixed and staring on the spot where he had gone down.

Saved!

He came to the surface sputtering and gasping so energetically that an expert would have pronounced it unnatural if not remarkable. He disappeared a second time, though this time he hated himself for giving her additional fright. He came up again near where she stood. She threw herself on her knees and reached for him. Outstretched hand. Clutching it, she gave a mighty pull, and in bracing herself against the rocks, screamed "Hold tight, Bobby, I've got you."

Bobby, dripping wet and feigning weakness, scrambled up the bank and helped her to her feet.

"Oh, dear, dear, I am so glad I saved you," clutching each wet sleeve with nervous fingers, her face white and trembling.

"You poor little girl, I didn't think you would be so frightened," he said unbelievingly, placing his wet arm around her waist, utterly unmindful of the crisp white shirtwaist.

"I thought you were d-d-drowned," she stammered.

"Eleanor," he asked in a determined effort to smother the last remnant of his jealousy and to know the worst) "do you really care for that idiotic old bore?"

"You dear silly boy," she said, stroking his thick wet hair, "I have only been teasing you. But come, dear, we must get to camp before you catch your death of cold."

As he rowed the smooth water between the two islands he asked, "Eleanor, what do you think of my system?"

"I think where are the fish we have been waiting dinner for?" called Mrs. Willoughby, the chaperon that Bobby held personally responsible for a great deal of his unhappiness at camp.

"Bobby," whispered Eleanor, "for the love of heaven do distract their attention until I slip into the tent; there's a wet streak across my back where your arm—"

Turning to Mrs. Willoughby and opening his basket where the two tiny bass inside had long since given up the struggle, Bobby said low and long, and with just a tinge of revenge, said:

"There, madam, is your fish."

HELPS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

A FRAME covered with cheesecloth for use in the pantry window will be found very helpful in keeping out a smoky city. It will keep the pantry clean, yet ventilate it as well. The frame should be made as big as one wishes the window to be opened. The same idea may be used for ventilating bedrooms.

The woman with a passion for renovation will find much comfort in the fact that some of the newest Paris models show the pinafore outline round the shoulders. This is a welcome fashion for last year's gowns, cutting away the bolero back and front, and edging them with silk passementerie, presto, there is conjured forth a little pinafore ready to be drawn over the dainty underbodice demanded by the pinafore style.

ROOSEVELT MAY HEAD CARNEGIE INSTITUTE

NEGOTIATIONS WITH IRON MASTER REPORTED AT WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 19.—A well-founded rumor became current to-day that President Roosevelt has given Andrew Carnegie his tacit consent to become the head of a new Carnegie educational institution. At this time the presumed negotiations are in the tentative stage and Mr. Carnegie declined to discuss them to-day.

The ironmaster has just returned from Washington, where he dined with President Roosevelt and spent much of his time in the company of the national executive. Asked whether he and the President had discussed a third term, Mr. Carnegie said: "The President has other plans."

Pittsburg is the seat of the great Carnegie educational institutions, which already have cost upwards of $12,000,000, and which are not yet completed.

DEATH SHOT HEARD OVER TELEPHONE

Girl's Voice Says: "Good-by, Please Identify Me," Then Pistol Sounds.

SHE IS INSTANTLY KILLED

NEW YORK, March 19.—A "good-by" and the clang of a revolver shot, coming half a mile over the telephone wire, brought the news of a beautiful Brooklyn girl's suicide to a far-off acquaintance to-day, before persons only ten and fifteen feet away knew what was happening.

Helen Dreuner, a popular and prosperous sewing teacher, chose the dainty method that too often been pictured in fiction, but has never before, perhaps, been used in real life. She said:

"Please come and identify me" and then before her distant hearer could realize the meaning of the words she fired a bullet through her temple and sold lifeless to the floor of the telephone booth.

She entered E. J. Woelfle's pharmacy at No. 915 Reid avenue, which is about ten minutes' walk from her home, and asked Harry Johnson, the clerk, who was alone there, if she might use the telephone.

Heard Her Give Call.

She entered the booth. He heard her say: "One-one-seven-eight Bushwick, please." Then he returned to the prescription that was engaging him behind the counter. A moment later the telephone bell in Smith's pharmacy, beneath the girl's home, brought the clerk, Burbidge, to the business desk.

"Is Mr. Smith there?" a woman's voice inquired.

"No; he and Mrs. Smith have gone to New York," Burbidge replied. "Is there anything I can do for you.

"This is Miss Dreuner," came the answer, slowly and clearly. "Yes—there is something—I—wish you might do me a favor."

"Surely." The voice was wavering, but the speaker was trying to control it—"I wish you would come here to Woelfle's store and—"

"Yes, Miss Dreuner."

"And identify me. Good-by."

Roar of Shot Over Wire.

Then a roar assailed Burbidge's ear. He dropped the receiver and stared at his own instrument. He picked it up and listened again. He could hear nothing. He rattled the hook for central; but there came no answer. Then he pulled what that seemed must have been. He grabbed his hat and rushed out of the front door.

Meanwhile, back in the Woelfle pharmacy, Johnson had heard a noise that sounded as though something had fallen from a shelf. He was unnerved, and hesitatingly, to see the telephone book swinging open and his pretty customer's body lying on the floor of the booth compartment.

There was a hole in her left temple and a big revolver by beside her.

In a moment Burbidge, the other clerk, came racing in breathless and identified her.

She was killed instantly.

News of the Theatres

Cora Net wrote came out from her birthday yesterday afternoon and gave a performance of "Camille" that was both satisfactory and creditable to her. She was handicapped, however, by an evident lack of rehearsals which caused a halting in many of the lines, and particularly in the supporting work of her fellow players. Miss Nethersole spoke with more sincerity and conviction, and particularly in her first love scene with Armand she rose to the heights where she deserved even more applause than she got. Mr. Mills was an ideal Armand. Taken as a whole, "Camille" was the most satisfactory performance of the series. To-night Miss Nethersole plays "Magda" and to-morrow night "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

The Thomas Davies Chapin Choral Society is to sing a group of native songs at the Castle Square Theatre to-morrow night in connection with the production of "The Shaughraun." There are twenty-five young men in the society.

After three years' absence Keller, the famous magician, returns to the Globe next week, and will there introduce as his successor Howard Thurston. Mr. Keller will retire from the stage in May.

Joseph Howard, Mabel Barrison, Severin De Lyra and others are very popular at the Globe this week in Mr. Howard's musical play, "The Flower of the Ranch."

There is a new "Big Donovan" in "Peaches" at the Orpheum, and he is really an improvement on the original of the character. This act has broken all records for curtain calls.

Professor de Macky's twenty-minute illustrated lecture on "Travels in France" is proving very popular at the Bijou Dream.

Ed Wynn of Wynn and Lewis, now at the Orpheum, has been adopted that he has fallen heir to a large fortune through the death of a relative in England. Mr. Wynn's father is one of the largest wholesale milliners in Philadelphia.

Rose Stahl, who is playing at the Park, is being burlesqued at the Majestic by Blanche King, and it is the laughing hit of "The Gay White Way." In fact, "The Gay White Way" is a lively show, livelier from start to finish. Next week is its last week here. Then comes "The Girl o' the World," with its dancing collie dogs.

"Pipe the veil. Ain't that a Susie Smith-ereen," is only one of the sayings of Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady" at the Park. The first act is the liveliest comedy ever brought to Boston, and the three other acts are delicious in their comedy and heart interest.

The evening at the Columbia Manager Farren inaugurates his new amateur night and will continue it all season, in addition to the regular amateur night on Friday. "The Roffkers" this week have a great musical show.

Ten big turns are listed for the "husiness" amateur night at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night, after the performance of "The Great Express Robbery," the regular attraction this week.

Maude Adams as "Chicot" has a part that exactly fits her talent, and the result is that "The Jesters" is delightful. It is a charming mingling of humor and romance and the Hollis Street Theatre is doing big business.

Ethel Barrymore comes to the Colonial next week in "Her Sister," and Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts will be in the cast the following week in "The Right of Way."

Seats for all performances of the Boston Hippodrome, which opens at Mechanics Building March 30, are on sale at box office, No. 74 Boylston street. The "Order of the Eastern Star" has the second night as its benefit.

"Arabian Nights" at the Boston is bringing out the various players as specialists, notably Wilson Melrose as a singer, Donald Meek, Hilda Glyde and the rest. "The Sign of the Cross" next week.

About all that it is necessary to say about the Tremont nowadays is that "The Man of the Hour" continues to be the attraction there, and the orchestra is under the stage because of the crowds.

Lillian Millward, recently here in "The Hypocrites," has a strong dramatic sketch at Keith's this week, called "The Queen's Messenger."

To-morrow night the amateurs will be strong at the Palace, in conjunction with Sam Scribner's big burlesque company.

Beginning to-morrow, there will be a continuous performance at Scenic Temple after 2 o'clock.

Two distinct theatre performances, with Marie Lil, the fat English beauty; Milo Bevree, the sword swallower, and the Five Ball are only a small number of this week's features at Austin & Stone's.

200 HURT IN BERLIN RIOTS

BERLIN, March 19.—One hundred and fifty to two hundred persons are estimated to have been hurt in last night's rioting in which the socialist demonstrations in memory of the revolutionists killed in the street fighting here March 18, 1848, finally culminated.

The demonstrators' visit to the cemetery, where the 500 victims of the 1848 riots lie, and even the meetings which followed throughout the city and suburbs passed off quietly, but when processions tried to march to the Kaiser's palace and the various government buildings the police stopped and drove them back with the flat of their swords. Many women were among the injured, but, so far as known, no one was fatally hurt.

ARRESTED MEN FREED BY COURT

The hasty conclusion of a police officer in the arrest Saturday night of John Copithorn of No. 362 Main street, charles town, whom the officer charged with being implicated in the robbery of $1000 from Thomas S. Madden of South Boston had its aftermath in the dismissal of the case against the young man in the Municipal Court and his complete vindication yesterday.

Copithorn is a young man of excellent character and fell keenly the disgrace put upon him.

Madden lost his watch last Saturday night in an up-town cafe and Copithorn and two other young men were arrested charged with the theft. All three were discharged by the court.

2,000 LOAVES GIVEN AWAY

The opening of a bread line to-day by the Boston Young Men's Aid Association at No. 54 Leverett street, which is the first of a series of relief measures which have been planned for this winter, was the means by which many families of the West End district obtained food.

The committee in charge advertised that free bread, consisting of 1000 loaves of bread, and up to 11 o'clock more than one hundred persons, including several women, had assembled at the door. No questions were asked and the request of one man for twelve loaves was granted without a murmur of protestation.

When the bread line opened at 9 o'clock over a score of people were standing in line and officers from Station 3 were on hand to keep order.

PITTSBURG IN FLOOD PERIL

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 19.—With both the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers already surging torrents and rising at the rate of six inches an hour, Pittsburg is preparing for another flood. Forecaster Pomeroy says he has issued a warning to river men and residents of the submerged district, to expect a flood stage of thirty-three feet to-morrow morning. This will exceed by three feet the record of several weeks ago, and it is feared the losses will be very heavy. Already merchants are moving their wares out of the danger zone.

Railroad schedules are badly disarranged on account of numerous landslides that occurred during the night.

At noon to-day both rivers had passed the flood stage of thirty-two feet.

MILLIONAIRE HAVEN IS DEAD

NEW YORK, March 19.—George Griswold Haven, a multi-millionaire financier and former trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, died yesterday at his home, No. 24 East Thirty-ninth street. He had been ousted from his board of the Mutual, supposedly because of his feelings before the Armstrong Investigating Committee.

Death was the result of an operation last Saturday. He was seventy-four years old.

For years Mr. Haven was one of the foremost figures in the financial and social life of New York.

ROGER SULLIVAN NOT TO RUN AGAIN

CHICAGO, March 19.—As a result of the peace overtures over William J. Bryan during his recent visits here, and the ardent desires of the Democrats of the State to secure harmony, it is rumored to-day that Roger C. Sullivan, present national committeeman, who has bitterly assailed Bryan in the past, has agreed not to be a candidate for the place again.

FRENCH CREW CAPTURED.

PARIS, March 19.—The government announced that the crew of a French fishing vessel named the Baleine had been captured recently by Moroccans after having promptly landing near Cape Juby. An attempt will be made to rescue the men.

SEES PLOT IN DIVORCE SUIT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The divorced wife of Robert Lee Fisher, a wealthy broker, against his wife, who was formerly Miss Florence E. Wheeler of Cleveland, has been reopened upon the ground of conspiracy. The case will again be heard early in April, when it is said new facts may be aired. Mrs. Fisher is now living among the circle of friends of "The Midget," on account of her weight, which is only eighty-five pounds.

PORTSMOUTH PAINTER IS HEIR TO $100,000

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 19.—William Parslow, No. 21 Melbourne street, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Parslow, a painter by trade, learned to-day that he is heir to a fortune of $100,000. He has received a letter from his father in England stating that he has come into possession of a hereditary estate.

THONEY IS EXPECTED TO JOIN THE RED SOX AT LITTLE ROCK CAMP TODAY

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 19.—There was no morning practice for the Red Sox to-day. The boys have been pretty hard in the scorching weather lately and McGuire wisely decided to give them a slight let-up. That the players were nearly all in was easily seen in yesterday's game between the Regulars and Yannigans. There was absolutely no life to the play, and although Uncle Cy Young had saved himself for the game, he was not able to put ginger in his work and he was hammered all over the lot.

Last evening the players were seated as usual in front of the hotel discussing their condition. "I think we ought to cut the morning practice," said Doc Gessler, "and put in four hours in the afternoon." "I don't believe I ought to go out twice a day," said Criger, "it will do me more harm than good."

These complaints came to the ears of the Demon and the edict went forth that this morning work would be cut out. The Lord continued his fine swatting, knocking out a home run and two singles in four times up and he scored four runs. Gessler came next with a double and two singles.

Some of the squad are under the weather. Sullivan, Pat Donahue, Carlisle and Laporte did not go out for afternoon practice. The first two named developed severe headaches after the morning work, Carlisle's finger still keeps him out of the game, although he took morning practice, playing with his gloved hand.

Carlisle is not much better. His tonsilitis holds on and he still wears a bandage around his throat. The boys have got in as much practice since they have been here as a team usually gets in a month of spring work. The hot weather has had not a little to do with getting the kinks out of their systems.

Red Sox Enjoy Morning Off.

The let up to-day was thoroughly appreciated by all hands. Paderewski, the celebrated pianist, was here last night and some of the players as well as Professor Green, the trainer, went across the street to hear him. Green knows the showfooler so he fixed it for a few of the boys. At the first intermission Green emerged from the theatre and drew up a chair alongside a bunch of players who preferred the night air to classic music.

"What's the matter, Charlie? Don't you like Paderewski?" then inquired someone. "I know when I get enough," replied Green. "The guy's all right at that. He certainly can trim them some notes."

Lillian Russell will be here to-morrow night and President Taylor has invited the entire squad to attend her performance in "Wild Fire." Doubtless she will be better appreciated by the players than was the pianist.

Notes of the Players.

Pat Donahue, who cut out the arm practice on account of illness, caught a bellhop red-handed in his room. He recovered $9 and the boy went to jail.

Laporte is having his finger treated by a local doctor and Trainer Green is insanely jealous of the physician. If Laporte would leave that job to me, I would fill him up in no time, declares the professor.

Thoney is expected to report to-day. There is great curiosity among the players to see one of the best advertised ball tossers in the country.

Robertson, the Wheeling pitcher, is slowly recovering the use of his arm, which was badly lamed from too much practice the first week.

Elmer Criger is being coached daily by his brother. The youngster is a left hander, and Lew says he will make a good pitcher in time. He may go to Worcester. The score:

M'FARLAND, RED SOX'S NEW CATCHER.

McFarland, the former White Sox backstop, promises to be a great aid to the Red Sox this year. He promises to be good and will doubtless do better work than last year. McFarland went to Hot Springs early this Spring and there had a thorough boiling out. He is said to be in tip-top form now. McFarland is an unusually good man coaching young pitchers. He is a fair batsman.

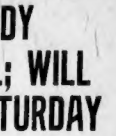
DOVES GETTING READY FOR REAL BASEBALL; WILL PLAY AUGUSTA SATURDAY

BY BILL ROSS.



AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—Something doing every minute is Manager Joe's motto while handling the Boston Nationals in practise play. He's bound to have the team in the pink of condition when the bell rings for the pennant race.

The veteran Doves say they never knew a club to start at such a fast clip. Almost every man in it, including Kelley, is stiff and sore, but the manager tells them to wear soreness out by hard work and sets the example.

The Doves will play the Yannigans on Friday and the Augusta team, which is in the South Atlantic League, on Saturday.

Next week Boston will play Augusta twice and the dates will probably be Wednesday and Saturday.

The idea of going to Macon for a game has been abandoned. Kelley figured it out that he had rather use the time it would take for traveling at practice.

Two weeks from to-day the Doves will break camp here and start north. The first stop will be at Columbia, S. C., on April 1, where Kelley's men will play the local team.

That will be the beginning of the exhibition game tour, which will end at the opening of the championship season in Brooklyn.

The work to-day was mostly in the way of working out the pitchers.

Pitchers Keep Arms Well Oiled.

Lindaman was the only one of the seven who did not take his turn in the box. In the morning there were Young, Ferguson and Pfeffer doing the twirling and in the afternoon the pitchers were Flaherty, Boultes and Dorner.

Big Jeff has the most speed. All pitched a straight ball and let the men at the bat line 'em out in all directions. It kept the fielders going. Some of the other bunch was using a fungo ball for long fly hitting and it was seldom that there was not enough balls in the air to serve for several pawnbrokers' signs.

Kelley kept his eye on the ball and the players at one and the same time. If a man lingered on the bench long enough to get more than three breaths Joe rang a hurry up call from somewhere in the lot.

Everybody worked, including Father Dovey. He was shy on pepper in the legs, but his heart was full of gladness. His boys are showing first division form in the Augusta fans' opinion.

Dahlen says he is glad to get away from New York and was content to sign with either Brooklyn or Boston. Vive Lindaman's front name is French and means Hiram. His last name is of the Pennsylvania Dutch pattern.

Johnny Bates Likes the Hub.

Johnny Bates says that Boston is the finest place on the map—after Steubenville, Ohio.

Jake Boultes is a slick boy at infield work. He is handling the ball with either hand and in a hurry.

Both Dahlen and Cy Young are showing the benefit of their long sojourn in the South before the Doves arrived.

Pat Flaherty is a pitcher who uses his head as well as his arm. No curve balls are being handed out by him just yet. When the season begins he means to have his business wing as limber as an eel.

Gus Dorner in taking it easy, because he was no recently the leading man in a surgery drama.

Dann Mellann says little and hits the ball hard.

M'HALE MAY BE FINED $100

CINCINNATI, March 19.—Outfielder McHale of the Red Sox, and Chase and Moriarty of the New York Americans, Bonn of the Philadelphia Nationals, Waterbury of the Boston Nationals, Nelson of the Toronto club, and Stange of the Newark club may have fined $100 each for playing ball this fall after the Chicago Federals had refused to accept Hempstead's application. The last mentioned six have been ruled that no such playing must occur, and it was announced that a fine of $100 would be inflicted for the first offence and suspension for the second offence.

GALLAGHER BEATS BARKER.

Tom Gallagher played Charles Barker at the Imperial billiard room, and in a game of 18-inch balk line, one shot in, Gallagher won, 500 to 47.4.

TIGERS ARE INSURED FOR $200,000

Insured for $200,000

And some necks to spare.

That's the financial valuation placed upon the limbs of the husky athletes by the Detroit club. The leave of the Tiger management is a new departure in baseball, and probably will be followed by every big league team in the business. Heretofore it has been impossible for a baseball player to secure accident insurance covering his work in the field. Relatively competition has caused the insurance companies to keep out of this and other directions, but the natural result that followed the taking advantage of the opportunity to sell even on doctors' bills and ice cream in the future.

WESTERN MEN SEND MARES TO COCHATO

"What is the fancy of one breeder is frequently the opposite to what another may believe," remarked George W. Leavitt to-day, and then illustrated his idea by going on the following: "Now, there is Jack Crabtree, who, in order to find a stallion he feels like breeding his mares to, ships them from Massachusetts to Michigan and Kentucky.

"On the other hand, Dr. W. A. Gibson of Jackson, Mich., is sending to Massachusetts to breed to Cochato (3), 2.11¼; his producing brood mare, Lady Sorrette, 2.23¾, dam of Swelling Chief, 2.22¾, by Norval, 2.14¾, while the dam of Lady Norwich was by Gambetta Wilkes, 2.19¾, the first stallion to have 200 of his get in the 2.30 list, and the dam of quite a few dozen named Nutwood, 2.18¾.

"That is breeding in the purple, I take it. If I'm any judge, but that is not all; Cochato is getting mares from every section of the country, there is another strain by Joseph S. Karnes, Canal Dover, Ohio, by Olean (2.23¾), by Axtell (2.18¾), son of Mollie Morgan, by Manbrino Russell, Mollie Morgan is the dam of Russellwood (2.14¼), Tellus (2.18¾) and Olean (2.23¾), all producing dams of half-mile tracks.

"When a stallion is getting mares sent to him from all parts of this kind, I tell you that is going some, and then some more."

PROVIDENCE BOY LOSES TO GEO. ASHLEY

NEW BEDFORD, March 19.—In the first round of his fight at the Jefferson A. C. with George Ashley, Joe Dyer, the Providence lightweight of Providence, looked like a winner. He shot in a straight left, which Ashley was careless enough to stop with his face. Ashley went down, but was up immediately, and thereafter peppered Bell with every punch and jolt known to boxing.

Bell stood until the third round, when, after a terrific uppercut, he dropped Lyle in his corner and announced that he had a cramp. His seconds urged him to go on with the fight, but the Providence man had enough, and Referee Downey awarded the decision to Ashley.

In the preliminaries Young Stoors stopped Young Gibson with a left to the jaw in the first round, and Young Morro bested Kid French in the fifth round.

The races were held under the auspices of the Savannah Auto Club and the A. A. A. and were run off in perfect order, the cars being sent away at 30-minute intervals. The course was policed by 300 militiamen, 60 policemen and 30 flagmen.

SHAWSHEEN FARM COLTS HEADED FOR FUTURITIES

Unless all signs fail the Parker brothers, Arthur H. and Francis S., will send out from the Shawsheen River Farm, Bedford, a number of two and three-year-olds that will rate high in the futurity events of the year, if, in fact, they don't top the summary of some of the richest to be decided.

Since buying the noted stallions Ringen, 2.08¾, and Allewood, 2.09¾, the owners of the Shawsheen River Farm have been constantly picking up the best brood mares in the market. Later, with the additions joined to it only in the natural order of things that the produce should prove of extraordinary speed when developed.

Arthur Parker's candidate for the three-year-old futurities is the filly Hazelwood, by Allewood, out of Miss McGregor, 2.13. She faced the starter last season in the younger division of the American Horse Breeder Futurity at Readville, but was not in condition to do herself credit. This season she will be in the pink of shape for beguiling fast work.

Francis Parker has two strings to his bow, one to race two-old futurity stakes in Readville, by Ringen, out of Jolly Bird, 2.15¾, making him full brother of Cedero (4), 2.09¾, and in a filly by Ringen, out of Margaret Bathgate (4), 2.11¼.

In the latter he will have a chance to get in a two mile Hayberry, by Ringen, out of Mattie S. Wilkes, 2.20¾. She once could beat 2.15 three years ago, but went wrong and was let up. She is now all right for training.

Recently three brood mares have been bought at Shawsheen by Annie Leyburn, 2.10¼; Little Bertie, 2.11¾, and Ace of Hearts, by Campbell's Electioneer, 2.11¾, Aquilla, 2.19¾, the promising young stallion bought in the Winter, is taking the eye of local breeders and is already assured of a big season in the stud.

It is planned to work the training stock at the farm, half-mile track in the early months of Spring, and along the latter part of June, or first of July, to take them to the Readville track for the finishing touches in their "prep." This will have the youngsters ready for the initial futurity stake of the year, the American Horse Breeder, which will be raced during the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville. Others of the Shawsheen Farm Racing string not mentioned that will be in training follow:

Ray filly (2) by Ringen, out of Katie McGregor; by Directum, 2.05¼; chestnut filly (2) by Allewood; bay colt (1) by Ringen, dam, Ace of Hearts; Woodbine (2) by Allewood, dam, Miss Ringen, by Ringen, and the bay filly (1) by Ringen, out of Margaret Bathgate (4), 2.11¼.

HERE'S HANS WAGNER, WHO REFUSES $15,000 A YEAR SO HE CAN RAISE CHICKS

No. 2—Lives of Great Ball Players.

It is needless to go into detail in introducing "Honus" Wagner to baseball fans anywhere. "The Flying Dutchman" is known wherever followers of the great national game congregate, as one of the greatest players the sport has ever produced. Born of humble parents, this burly star passed his boyhood days underground as his father's helper in a coal mine at Carnegie, Pa., a few miles up Pittsburg. The family was not blessed with much of this world's goods, and "Honus" had to do his share in helping to support it.

As an early age, he showed baseball ability, though one of the most awkward looking personages imaginable. His first professional engagement was with Steubenville, O., and from there he went to Inderson, N. J., from which team Louisville secured him. He was one of the players who came here when the two teams were consolidated.

Greatest of Players.

Many fans consider him the greatest ball player in the world, and there are few who can indeed who can dispute his claim. Since joining Louisville in 1897 he has never batted lower than .300 mark. Five times he has led the National League in batting—in 1900, 1901, 1904, 1906 and 1907. Last December, at the banquet tendered the National League magnates by President Charles W. Murphy of the Chicago club, Wagner was the guest of honor, and was presented with a huge and handsome silver loving cup, in token of the league's appreciation of his prowess with the bat and of his faithful service to the organization for ten years.

He is quiet and unassuming, surely one of the most modest men that even won fame in any line. He detests notoriety, and it is impossible to get him to talk of his accomplishments on the diamond. He spends his Winters in Carnegie, surrounded by a host of congenial friends. He is a thorough sportsman, and during the off season devotes a time to his dogs and gun, his horses and his automobile.

The Pittsburg club has offered Wagner $15,000 a year, but he has declined, saying he could make more money running his chicken farm. Many of Wagner's friends, however, think this is only Honus's annual Spring joke, and that he will be found with the club again this Summer, even if he does not join until after the spring training trip.

By making the batting championship in 1907 Wagner established a record never before made by any ball player, and by leading the National League batsmen five times. His batting record is appended:

PEERLESS MAN FIRST HOME IN MATCHRACE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

In the cold, gray dawn of yesterday morning, at 5 o'clock not 1,000 miles remote from the city of Boston, the road to Providence is smooth as a billiard table and straight as the proverbial die, there was waged a little contest between two motors, the results of which is now being talked about throughout the local motor world. During the recent show there was no end of talk regarding the relative merits of different cars, and one man was bold enough to say that the American could "lick" anything that gave on wheels in the show room. When it came to a "show down" the man was just as game as game could be, and agreed to wager any part of $1,000, as Dave Schafer, that he knew what he was talking about. He would take on anything and particularly stated that he would be pleased to meet the Peerless.

A race was made and the Peerless bunch found $1000 lying around loose for the investment. When it came to investing the stake proved interesting, and an only $300 was forthcoming. Yesterday morning the fight was on. Selected bullfinch drove out of town just as the dawn was appearing over the eastern horizon. The fighting ground was reached without exciting the curiosity in any of the police. The cars lined up, Prescricks at the wheel of the fifty horse power American and Jim McKeaney driving the fifty-two-horse power Peerless, and were accorded all the manner of ceremonies and kept his weather eye on the lookout for the police and likewise on the man who held the stakes. The start was from a standstill. Both cars got away with all the gears to mesh in great style, gaining at least three lengths on the get away and the very start.

The Peerless forged to the fore like a thoroughbred, opening up the white space between herself and the American, and then at the three-quarter mile, something went wrong and the carburetor of the Peerless can and she was easily defeated. The driver was turned over to a bystander remarked that it was a fluke, and wanted to see another race, but Schafer and Sheffield Pinchpotentiary "Donny" was at hand. He was willing, but nothing doing unless he saw the color of sufficient real money to purchase gasoline. The bystander thought he knew a thing or two, and went down into his jeans, producing $25, which he placed on the American, the assistant to chief produced a similar sum, and the second race was on. McKeaney again got away first and took the money, he finishing seven five lengths ahead of the American. The American operator said he travelled at sixty-seven miles an hour. The Peerless man said he went fast enough to get the money. That's all.

A decided hit has been made among six cylinder enthusiasts by the announcement Morn roadster six cylinder which arrived at the Morn-Hess Co. company last week. The tonneau of the newcomer is practically identical with that of the four-three chain models which created so much interest at the New York shows and which fulfils the promise of the manufacturers made at the time. It has the distinct advantage of easy riding qualities usually associated with the excellent spring construction. The full platforming with the rear axle which is fitted make it ride as easy as a big touring car. As on the Morn six chassis the motor and on the Morn six cylinder runabout two separate and independent systems of ignition are employed, one by high tension magneto, the other by coil and battery. Imported F. & S. annular ball bearings in the crank shaft and the three speed gears and transmission, thirty-six inch wheels fitted with the new demountable all around are talking points which only the man who has operated a high-priced machine can appreciate. The car is on hand to him is how it can be done at the price.

The club fever is busy among Michigan motorists at the present time. Automobile and motoring organizations have recently been formed in Flint and Kalamazoo, while one is about to be organized in several other cities.

PIANOS AND ORGANS. PIANOS AND ORGANS.

What You Pay for--In Pianos

You pay for material, work of construction, legitimate expenses covering rents, salesmen's salaries—all these things you pay for in all lines—not piano alone. In buying a piano you must avoid paying Price Prices—that is, buying a piano on name alone. We admit that the names of makers of high-class pianos are good guarantees of value and quality, and furthermore we admit that the maker of a fine piano is entitled to a good price for his genius—musical, artistic, etc.; but in these days of fierce competition you don't have to pay too big a price for even these qualities. We go into the cold, cruel, competitive market and buy at sacrifice cash prices the leaders of pianos, come now and some used. They go on our sacrifice floor tagged at a price that covers nothing but hard luck and necessity. We have all makes. We pay no favorites. We sell—that's all.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MARCH 19, 1908

TRUST OWNERS DECIDE IN FAVOR OF THE TRUST

Surprising, Isn't It? Also Very Important.

Well, it's happened. The special committee of Mellen stockholders has reported in favor of Mellen's railroad trust.

Several weeks ago the AMERICAN called attention to the fact that President Tuttle, whom Mr. Mellen found among his assets when he bought the Boston & Maine, was advising the public to wait for the report of the Commission on Commerce and Industry. Colonel Albert Clarke and other Mellen spokesmen were issuing the same prophetic advice. The AMERICAN at that time asked HOW they knew WHAT THE REPORT WAS GOING TO BE.

The report was to have been made public about that time, but when the AMERICAN called attention to the press agent work being done in its behalf by Mr. Mellen's spokesmen, the report was delayed.

Frederick P. Fish, a professional promoter of trusts, told the public on March 6 that the "investigating" was being done by Joseph B. Warner, George G. Crocker and Charles Francis Adams, 2d, who constituted the sub-committee on transportation. At that time it was evident that a studied attempt was being made to make Messrs. Warner, Crocker and Adams appear very important, and to make ex-Governor William L. Douglas, the only business man on the commission, and James R. Crozier, the only representative of labor on the commission, very unimportant.

The AMERICAN became suspicious of such an obvious attempt to prejudice the mind of the public in advance, and it began an investigation. The AMERICAN discovered that every one of these three corporation lawyers who were preparing the report on the merger was a STOCKHOLDER IN THE NEW HAVEN ROAD.

The publication of the fact that the "investigators" of the merger were Mellen stockholders apparently caused another postponement of the report. On the day following the publication of this fact in the AMERICAN the committee asked for more time.

At last the report much heralded by Mr. Mellen's spokesmen has been given to the Legislature. If the only members of the commission had been these three corporation lawyers, who are also Mellen stockholders, the public would not in the natural course of events have paid much attention to it; but by a rare accident there was ONE business man on this business commission, and there was also ONE representative of the MILLIONS OF WORKERS in New England—three corporation lawyers to represent the Railroad Trust and Mr. Mellen, one man to represent the independent business interests of New England and one man to represent the millions of workers.

The fact that there WAS a business man and that there WAS a workingman on the commission lends some interest to its findings, so we call attention briefly to a few things in the report.

The three lawyer-stockholders, of course, find in favor of the merger. The business man, ex-Governor Douglas, reports against it; the labor man, James R. Crozier, reports against it.

The three Mellen stockholders, in their report, confess that neither the Governor nor the Legislature asked them to investigate the merger. They did so of their own volition, because they found that the Railroad Commission was not going to do it.

While the Trusts have been gaining in power, Massachusetts has been sliding backwards. The Commission on Commerce and Industry were selected by the Governor to find out what was the matter with Massachusetts. The three trust lawyers report calmly that what Massachusetts needs is MORE TRUSTS, a bigger trust than ever—ONE THAT SHALL HAVE ABSOLUTE CONTROL OF ALL TRANSPORTATION IN NEW ENGLAND AND CAN DICTATE TERMS OF BUSINESS TO EVERYBODY.

Mr. Douglas, the business man, on the other hand, finds that things have gone far enough in favor of monopoly, and that it is time to call a halt. He shows that there is not nearly so much to be said in favor of the present merger as there was in favor of the Boston & Albany merger with the New York Central, and he shows how disastrously that Boston & Albany merger has worked. He further makes known this interesting fact regarding the workings of the commission itself:

> The members of the sub-committee on transportation of the Commission on Commerce and Industry have not conducted their inquiries publicly, with a view to ascertaining the opinions of producers or the plain people who wish to keep open the door of opportunity. I am convinced that a decision FAVORABLE TO THE MERGER was reached BEFORE A FULL EXAMINATION OF ITS BEARINGS WAS MADE.

So much for the business man's view of the merger. Let us see what the labor man finds:

> The main objection is that a merger of these two railroad systems would result in a complete monopoly, not only of all railroad transportation in Massachusetts, but of all methods of transportation —of steamship lines and trolleys, as well as the railroads. It has been the steady policy of the New Haven company to secure such a monopoly wherever it has any railroads. It has pursued everywhere the policy of suppressing all competition, regardless of the cost to the community of its doing so. It has followed this policy in Massachusetts regardless of our law and of its own promise to the contrary.

Mr. Crozier also protests emphatically against the "secret investigation which the sub-committee on transportation adopted":

> Those who favor the merger evidently did not dare to follow the method which the Legislature provided for a public investigation. They did not make any application to the Railroad Commission; and instead of that the Commission on Commerce and Industry, which was appointed for an entirely different purpose, undertook to make an investigation conducted privately.
>
> Not only has no public hearing been given by the sub-committee on transportation, which undertook the investigation, but the public was not even notified that the merger question was being considered by this commission. Indeed, the fact that members of this commission were investigating the subject was known only to a few people until after the Legislature convened and at the time when the report of the commission should have been filed.

Mr. Crozier closes his report by exposing the fact that on the twelfth of December the three lawyers on the commission had a conference over the telephone with Vice-President Byrnes, Mr. Mellen's assistant, in which they made it known to Mr. Byrnes that they favored the merger and were trying to find some way of determining upon "safeguards which would make the arrangements safe for the Commonwealth!"

Now we know HOW Mellen's press agents knew what this commission was going to report. MELLEN'S STOCKHOLDERS ON THE COMMITTEE TOLD HIM ABOUT IT.

This report will have just about as much weight as the famous dictum of the three tailors of Tooley street. All the corporation lawyers and New Haven stockholders in New England will, without doubt, agree with the findings of the lawyer-stockholders who report in favor of the merger. The business men and working people of New England will agree with the report made by the representatives of business and labor.

Woman's Greatest Sphere of Usefulness Is in Setting a Right Example for Her Children

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

A REMARKABLE child appeared the results pay for the efforts of mind some years ago before American audiences—an American boy ten years old—Florizel Reuter by name.

He was in truth, as has been said, "The Marvel of the Age," whom European critics called "The New Paganini," and who not only played all the twenty-four Paganini caprices by heart, but also played the music of Vieuxtemps, Bach, Wieniawski, Mendelssohn and Mosart as easily as other children amuse themselves at tennis or marbles.

In America people grew wildly enthusiastic over him, and no wonder. He was an absolutely healthy child, fond of turning "handsprings" like other boys of his age and performing feats of physical prowess. He was deeply interested in history and possessed a wonderful memory for dates.

Now would you like to know how this child came to be such a genius? Let me tell you. It is an interesting story. From the first hour that Florizel's mother knew the wonderful and divine experience of motherhood was to be hers she resolved to bring a genius into the world.

Eight months before her child saw the light of earthly existence this wise young mother, who had always loved music passionately, began to read about the lives of great composers, to attend concerts and musicales and operas, and to permeate her whole being with the atmosphere of music.

Make It a Purpose

THE violin was her favorite instrument, and she made it her business to hear violin music, to think of it and study it.

Never for one hour did she question the future of her child. "My child will be a great musician," she persisted, even when friends and relatives laughed at her as a dreamer. She had known sorrow, and many a woman in her place would have spent the months in tears and repinings and discontent with the thought of motherhood.

This woman, a mere girl in years, chose to make motherhood a beautiful success—a glorious art. She read, thought, dreamed, believed, hoped—all in line with her desire.

She studied history, too, and made notes to give her mental powers recreation. She and the whole music-loving world have reaped the reward of those months of divine preparation for motherhood.

Florizel more than fulfilled his mother's expectations. He was all she hoped and believed he would be as a child wonder.

It is to be regretted that so few women regard the career of a mother as a profession. I know of but one other who deliberately chose her child's vocation before its birth. That child also became famous, and was the pride and support of the mother through a long life.

Of course it requires determination, will power and persistence for a woman to keep such a purpose dominant in her mind, at such a time. But that a "larger sphere of usefulness."

Career for Any Woman

I FREQUENTLY hear women complain that their spheres are narrow and limited.

"But there is your boy," I suggested. "What a sphere that opens up to you."

"Oh, yes, it will be an occupation for me later, when he is old enough to go about with me and travel. But just now he is in school several hours in the day, and out at play when not in school or in bed, and I really see little of him. Of course, I talk with him about his studies more or less, but I often wish I were better educated or had some profession in which I could distinguish myself, that he might look up to me in future years.

"Children are so wonderfully taught at school in these days. They are inclined to look down on their parents as they mature."

Meantime the mother, who was refined and agreeable in her manners, allowed her little son to use a toothpick before people, to tilt back in his chair and to answer "Yes," "No" and "I don't know" to his elders without any affix of the person's name addressed.

"He is a regular boy," was her only criticism of any of his bad manners; "he will have to learn how to behave by degrees, like the rest of us. It is so foolish to expect a small child to act like a grown-up individual."

Yet bad manners contracted in early childhood are not easily rectified in later life!

What a mistake for a woman to be sighing for a wide field of usefulness while she lets her children grow up with habits which will offend and disgust their associates in later life.

Form Right Habits

THERE is an otherwise refined and cultured man of my acquaintance who takes his soup and his coffee so noisily that one feels his place is in the stable with the cattle rather than at table with his friends.

His mother did not correct this habit in his early childhood, and he has never encountered any one since who was kind and brave enough to tell him how disagreeable it was. He is no doubt unconscious of the fault, it has become so much a matter of second nature.

I heard another mother jest about her young boy's disorderly ways.

"It keeps one person picking up after him constantly when he is in the house," she said, "he is so full of life and goes from one thing to another so constantly."

The boy was ten years old—old enough to be reasoned with and made to understand how his untidy habits inconvenienced others.

It never occurred to the mother that she was helping to form a selfish and inconsiderate character that would dominate other lives than her own later on.

And yet this woman, too, sighed for

EDITORIAL

Readers who work for a living and cannot devote all their time to reading my messages are failing behind.

Therefore I have decided to rewrite some of my former messages, condensing them sufficiently to enable men with three hours' leisure a day to keep abreast of my production.

For instance, in a former message I used the phrase—

Maidenless of great wealth.

In my condensation this line will be—

Rich shes and uglies.

Another line in an earlier message was—

A corporation in restraint of trade.

In the condensation it will be—

A short & ugly co.

Look out for our capsule message of 20,000 words.

Buy it now and take it home.

St. Patrick's Day is over. We celebrate that day and a number of others, being largely of Irish descent, three-fourths German; partly Southern, chiefly Northern, much Western, half Scottish, a third Danish, a little Welsh, and partly Canadian, Bavarian, Austrian, Chelsea, Roxbury and Native Son. This is what makes us so hot to get out of touch with all sections of the country.

The Thaw jurors should be hanged.

Manufacturers of great wealth should be hung.

Game should be here.

GREAT SPEECH BY MY CANDIDATE

Big Bill Knocks My Foes, Boosts My Friends

"Hurray for the Black Man! He's useful to the Republican party when he votes for us."

In these ringing words my candidate made a speech boosting my policies.

My candidate continued:

"Do we hurray for the Pink or Yellow man? Never; he can do my great friend no good.

"My great friend is not a Blue Pill, as he has been called by an alleged humorist.

"I am in favor of all his policies; at the same time I am in favor of anything that will get me some votes.

"In some respects I am conservative. Corporations are useful at times—gentlemen, I ask you—of what use is an empty dough head?

"THE party must have campaign funds.

"I am in favor of the eight-hour day, if we can't contest the worker with the nine-hour day.

"Since others have pointed out the value of waterways, I am strongly in favor of such routes. There should be a waterway in every ocean.

"I favor the reduction of the tariff, but only on such imports as auk's eggs, diplodocuses and early Greek statuary."

The chairman then called for three cheers for the speaker, the audience responding with long yells of "Teddy's all right."

SPORT NOTES

The heavyweight boxing championship of the Navy has been won by the Commander-in-chief of the Army.

The wrestling championship of the Army has been won by the Commander-in-chief of the Navy.

Hackenschmidt, the wrestler, has never been thrown. He has never visited Washington.

Jimmie Garfield was beaten in the first tennis game of his season. Jimmie is pretty good, but no match for the Gazette's Editor.

The high-jumping record has been broken by T. Roosevelt. We jumped 8 feet 7 inches on hearing that Taft's bureau was sending out literature hitting at my policies.

SOCIAL NOTES

Charley Fairbanks gave a stag party last night, which broke up at a late hour. The liquid refreshments consisted of "bottermilk," which caused one guest to attempt a horsjipe on the table.

The Editor of the Gazette complimented Clifford Pinchot yesterday on the excellent condition of the forest reserve on the upper north section of Governor Hughes.
